GIBBONS IS ILL; BRITISH PLAN ACTION

NOTED WRITER IS IN HOSPITAL; SANCTIONS NEAR

Report British Reject Italy's Peace Proposals, Act Tuesday.

DRIVE IS CONTINUED

Il Duce's Tanks Pushing Ethiopians Back; Sultan Killed.

By International News Service

Floyd Gibbons, noted world traveler and war correspondent for International News Service, collapsed at the Italian war front in Eritrea and was rushed to the hospital at Khartoum for treatment.

Gibbons is reported very ill and it is feared he will be incapacitated for sometime.

LONDON, Oct. 26—Italian peace proposals have been received in London, they have been virtually rejected, and Great Britain is preparing to go ahead next Tuesday with vigorous penalization of Italy, it was learned today.

Tanks Route Troops

ROME, Oct. 26—While the western flank of the province-wide Italian front in southeastern Ethiopia fought its way with tanks, airplanes, and machine guns from village to village, the khaki tide on the east wing swept forward in unopposed marches 100 miles into enemy territory.

As a result of the successful push through mountains and over deserts, Sandro Sandri, the Popolo Di Romai correspondent at Magadiscio, Italian Somaliland, today wrote that the showdown at the fortified town of Gorrahei is expected at any moment.

Other advices have said that a strong Abyssinian force has been ordered to hold that citadel "to the death."

Amplifying yesterday's official Italian communique, telling of the capture of Callafo, dominant town in the Shavell sector and Geledi, the correspondent said that tanks had routed Abyssinians retreating from Dagneret, which was occupied last Sunday, driving them to refuge in the bush.

Sultan Olol Dinle, chieftain of the Shaveli district who now fights under the Italian banner, continues to bear the brunt of the rattling in this area, although supervised by Italians.

Sultan Is Killed

Sultan Olol Dinle, Sandri said, killed the important Abyssinian leader Ahmed Badil, scattering his forces at the foot of Dagnerei, and captured 500 rifles.

50 GIVEN WORK IN PRIVATE JOBS

Re-Employment Office Lists Placements During Week.

Fifty persons were given private placements last week by the National Reemployment office, according to a report issued Saturday morning by James T. Shea, manager.

In addition the office supplied 50 men for WPA projects now under way.

A total of 1,806 persons in Ohio were given employment during the week, a state report showed.

Silbaugh Attackers Freed in Columbus

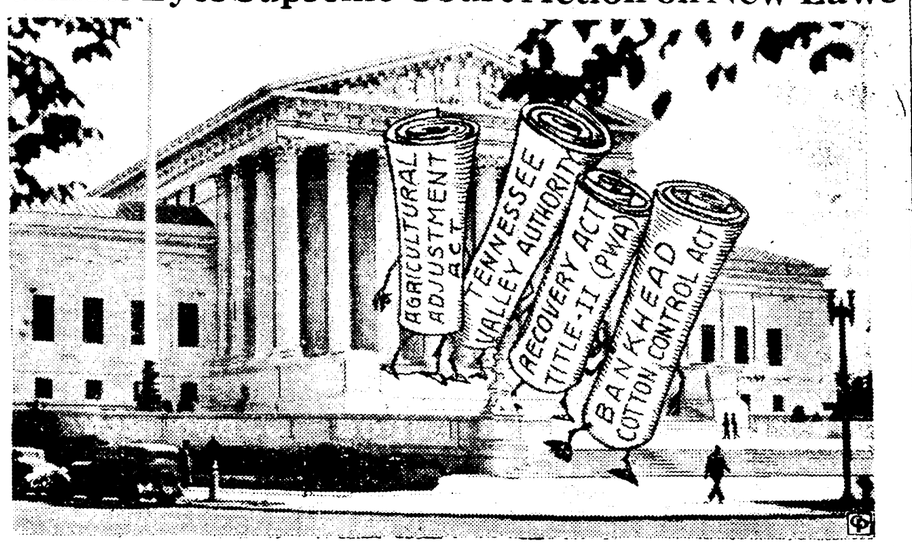
COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Two men, who, according to John Silbaugh, Fairfield-co prosecutor, attacked him without provocation here recently, were released from jail, today, when Silbaugh failed to appear to file charges against the men.

MANAGES STATION

Melvin A. 'Pat' Yates, E. Franklin-st, today took over the Sinclair service station, N. Court-st, formerly occupied by Walter Stout.

Eddie Phebus and Lee Cook will be Mr. Yates' assistants.

Business Eyes Supreme Court Action on New Laws



BUSINESS AWAITS THESE DECISIONS

Appeals involving the constitutionality of recent legislation, awaiting action by the supreme court, are summarized below:

Agricultural Adjustment Act

United States v. Butler et al., receivers of the Hoosac Mills Corporation. Supreme court on Oct. 14 granted petition for review, involving constitutionality of the original processing tax, delegation of legislative power, interpretation of "general welfare" clause. May be argued next month.

Washburn Crosby company v. Nee, Collector. Petition filed Oct. 14 for review of processing tax of amended act and the right of processors to injunctions against collection of the tax.

Bankhead Cotton Control Act

Moor v. Texas & New Orleans railroad. Supreme court consented May 20 to hear case in which cotton grower claims the law is not an exercise of taxing power or power over interstate commerce.

Tennessee Valley Control Act

Ashwander et al. v. Tennessee Valley Authority et al. Petition for review filed in September with supreme court by stockholders of Alabama Power company questions whether congress can create an agency to generate and sell electricity produced at Wilson dam. Review granted Oct. 14.

Recovery Act Title II (PWA)

United States v. Certain Lands in City of Louisville, etc. The government filed petition last month for review. Question is whether United States may exercise power of eminent domain under NRA to acquire land in a state for slum clearance and low-cost housing projects of the PWA. No action on petition for certiorari.

American business awaits the decisions of the supreme court at Washington on appeals involving the constitutionality of New Deal legislation. Most important of cases are those involving the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Bankhead Cotton Control Act, Tennessee Valley Authority and the Public Works Administration Act. A resume of each of the cases adjoins.

LEGION NAMES WARD, GOELLER

Men to Head Committees In Charge of Armistice Program.

Committees for the American Legion Armistice day celebration, which will include a parade and pyrotechnic display, followed by a ball in the C. A. C., were announced Saturday morning. The dance has been transferred from Memorial hall because the new boiler has not yet been installed.

Ralph Ward was named chairman of the parade with Bryan Custer and Paul Johnson as assistants. Reed Shafer will be in charge of the fireworks display.

Lawrence Goeller is chairman of the dance committee comprised of Orin Dreisbach, Karl Herrmann, Mack Parrett, Allen Thornton, Adrian Yates, Joe Lynch, Fred Dauenhauer, and Ralph Wood.

Ballots for Absent Voters are Available

Persons desiring absent voters' ballots may now obtain them at the office of Harry Weill, deputy clerk of the board of elections in the city building.

Anyone who will be absent from the county and a distance of more than ten miles from the precinct in which he is a qualified elector may vote an absent voters' ballot. Electors may vote in the deputy clerk's office or they may send in a written application for their ballots.

Persons disabled and unable to go to the polls may cast a disabled voters' ballot until Nov. 2, inclusive. The clerk has the necessary application blanks to be used for this purpose.

THEFT CHARGED

Leroy Brierly, 18, of Dayton, was bound to the grand jury under $1,000 bond late Friday by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, on a charge of auto theft. He was unable to furnish bond.

Brierly was arrested in Chillicothe Thursday night as driver of the Ford roadster stolen from Edward Phebus, Watt-st.

SIXTH OUTLAW IS FOUND SLAIN

Albert Stern, Wanted for Questioning in Schultz Case, Strangled.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26—Albert Stern, reputed to be New York's maddest killer, was found strangled to death today in his hotel room here. He was lying in bed in a gas-filled room.

Stern is the sixth important gangster to be killed within three days in the Newark-New York district.

He was being hunted as the killer of Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer and three of his aides at the time he was meeting his own death.

STAR OF STAGE, SCREEN IS ILL

John Barrymore Returns Home from Yacht Trip; May Enter Hospital.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26—At the point of collapse, John Barrymore, famed actor of the stage and screen, had returned to Hollywood today his romantic interlude with Elaine Barrie, New York actress, ended.

In striking contrast to the recent transcontinental love derby trip, Barrymore slipped quietly back to California aboard his palatial yacht, Infanta.

Dr. Walter Harper, Barrymore's physician, revealed the actor was on the verge of another collapse, saying he was highly nervous and run down.

Dr. Harper said unless Barrymore shows a definite improvement within a few days, it will be necessary for the actor to go a sanitarium for a rest before resuming his film work.

HEARING CONTINUED

The hearing for Gerald Riegel, 22, living near Cedar Hill, on a contempt of court charge, was continued until Dec. 14 by Judge J. W. Adkins in common pleas court Saturday morning. Riegel made arrangements to settle an alimony account.

NEW FURNITURE FOR P. O. ARRIVES

City Routing Cabinets Still Needed Before Office Opens.

Postal employes had a sudden attack of the moving fever Friday afternoon but were informed the necessary equipment for the new postoffice was still missing.

They were notified a large shipment of fixtures had arrived at a local freight house and probably included the city routing cases and incoming letter case. These fixtures are needed before the new office can be opened and have been on order since last spring.

The shipment included five rural routing cases, four postal tables, and insurance receipts and facing case.

Concrete work around the building is rapidly nearing completion and the postmaster expected word soon on the result of the bids for landscaping the front lawn.

Bids will be opened Oct. 29 at 2 p. m. for the installation of a time switch on the front lights.

ITALY'S ENVOY SMUGGLED OUT

Man Who Refused to Leave Addis Ababa Put On Train by Officials.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 26—A comedy of diplomatic errors ended today when the Italian minister, Count Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, and his military attache, Capt. Calderini, were smuggled into a train by Ethiopian authorities and whisked out of Addis Ababa for Djibouti so fast they were unable to communicate any more with the outside world.

Count Vince, whose strange conduct in remaining here after the Ethiopian government handed him his passports and asked him to leave, created diplomatic history without precedent, was taken early today from the private home of Ras Desta Demtu, where he had been held a virtual prisoner since his refusal to get out of the country.

'ONE HALLOWEEN' MAYOR CADY SAYS

"There is only one Halloween eve and at that time children are expected to have good, clean fun but any person caught destroying property will be prosecuted."

This was the statement issued Saturday morning by Mayor Cady after he had received reports pranksters had caused disturbances in several sections of the city Friday night.

THRONG OF 500 WATCHES CORN HUSKING MATCH

L. L. Melvin and Orland Schooley Winners of Pickaway-co Honors.

ROSS-CO MEN FAST

Winners to Compete in State Contest at Paulding Nov. 1.

L. L. Melvin, Ashville Rt. 2, and Orland Schooley, Circleville Rt. 1, are Pickaway-co's corn husking champions.

Melvin captured first place in the shock corn event, husking out 907 pounds in 80 minutes. Schooley tossed out 1,272 pounds in the same period in the standing stalk contest.

Other scores in the shock contest were: Dorsey Bumgarner, New Holland Rt. 1, 869 pounds; Charles Brown, Groveport, 853 pounds; Paul E. Winn, Circleville Rt. 5, 838 pounds; Dano Estell, Circleville Rt. 1, 811 pounds; E. F. Dill, Ashville Rt. 1, 760, and Marvin Winfough, Orient, 745 pounds.

Second honors in the stalk contest went to Robert Reynolds, Circleville Rt 2, for 1,233 pounds of corn. Other standings were: Kenneth Hamilton, Williamsport, 1222 pounds; Thomas Green, Mt. CORN-HOG VOTE IS HELD TODAY

35,000 Ohioans Expected to Cast Ballots on AAA Question.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Feasability of continuing co-operative control of corn-hog production today was to be decided in a nation-wide poll in which approximately 35,000 Ohio producers, members of 746 community organizations throughout the state, will participate.

The question before the farmers was: Do you favor a corn-hog adjustment program to follow the 1935 program, which expires Nov. 30, 1935?

J. W. Wunichel, Ohio State agricultural extension department in charge of the Ohio program, said unless the results of the referendum indicated a strong desire for continuing the program, no adjustment measures will be offered.

To Be Similar

Should the referendum approve the continuation, by a large majority, Wuichet said the new program probablyg will be similar to the one now in operation.

"There will be a few changes in the program which we will work out in more detail after the referendum is held," he said. But in many instances, the program will be similar to the one now in operation."

Results of the vote in Ohio are expected to be made public about Tuesday.

FINED FOR TAGS

Three Circleville residents were $5 and costs each Friday night by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, for failure to purchase dog tags. They were: Charles Boltenhouse, George Seymour and Francis Lavmaster. All arranged to settle their fines.

"THE KID", 21, PLANS TO PRODUCE FILMS

Jackie Coogan Denies Early Marriage As He Becomes Millionaire on Birthday

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26—"The Kid" today became a man—and a millionaire.

Born here 21 years ago today Jackie Coogan talked when he was seven months old, walked two months later, and at age of four was a movie star in a Charlie Chaplin picture, "The Kid" that brought Jackie fame and started a fortune now estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Coogan's father years ago established a trust fund and "the kid" today was to take control of the entire amount.

"I'm going to produce movies just as soon as I graduate from the University of Southern California next June," Coogan said today as he surveyed his new formal attire for a dinner dance his current girl friend, Betty Grable, is giving for him at the Cocanut Grove tonight.

No Immediate Marriage

"And no immediate marriage for me," Coogan added—and smiled, when he learned two of his other good friends, Toby Wing and Ida Lupino, also film players, Betty's precedessors for his affection, were to attend the Grable party. Toby and Jackie once were reported engaged—but it was only a rumor—they said.

Coogan today owns $1,500,000 in southern California real estate—but his allowance when he was a student at Santa Clara university was only $15 a week. When he was six years old he paid an income tax on an annual earning of $52,000. When he was nine years old he started to save $3.50 a week out of his allowance, planning to accumulate $100 and start his own movie company. When he was 10 years old he invested $500,000 in real estate. 9 year previously he had received that amount in one check from a studio for picture work.

Coogan declined to discuss in detail the fortune he started to control today.

"I'm going to be very careful with all funds," he said.

Coogan's favorite movie stars always have been Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

PICK E. A. BROWN AND C. E. HILL TO LEAD RED CROSS

Former Chairman of City Drive, Latter in County; Dates Set.

Chairmen for the roll call of the local chapter of Red Cross, to be staged between Armistice day and Thanksgiving, were announced Saturday morning.

Attorney E. A. Brown, E. Main-st, will be chairman of the city drive, and C. E. Hill, funeral director of Williamsport, will be county chairman.

The organization also announced the formation of a disaster relief committee composed of Carl C. Leist, E. C. Ebert, Frank Lynch, Harry Bartholmew, and Russell Imler.

Dr. E. L. Montgomery has been chosen as instructor for a first aid course for Boy Scouts to be given by the organization.

The county schools in cooperation with the Red Cross will sponsor an annual home inspection campaign to eliminate accidents, Oct. 28 to Nov. 2.

Inspection slips will be distributed to the children to check their homes for hazards. Certificates attached to the slips are to be returned to the teachers.

The inspection sheets explain more than one-third of all fatal accidents and nearly half of all accidental injuries are sustained in and about the home. Last year there were 34,500 lives lost in homes; approximately 150,000 people maimed for life, and injuries were sustained by nearly 5,000,000 persons.

The reports lists six inspections as follows:

1. Stairways and steps are kept clear, repaired, lighted; porches and balconies have secure railings; toys and utensils are properly stored; a step ladder is available in the home.

2. Safety matches are used, kept

Finger-Man?

Albert Stern, alias Stein, of New York, was found slain, in his hotel room in Newark, N. J. He was being sought as the trigger man for the seven murders in quick succession in the New York area. Dutch Schultz, No. 1 New York public enemy, was one of the latest victims.

DAVEY SCORNS HIGHWAY CUTS

Writes Lape to "Cross Off" $1,000,000 Slash; Ready to Fight.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25 — While conceding that there are "many valuable suggestions" in the Sherrill government survey report, Governor Davey today turned thumbs down on the recommended $1,100,000 savings in the highway department.

"Here is $1,100,000 you can cross off your list of proposed savings at the beginning," the governor wrote Herbert Lape, chairman of the "How About It" committee who had urged speed in effecting economies.

"You propose to save $1,100,000 by cutting the wages of laborers from 50 cents per hour to 40 cents," Davey wrote Lape. "In other words, you are willing to take it out of the poor laborers and give it to an extravagantly managed state university.

"I will never consent to cutting the wages of highway department laborers for this or any other purpose. Fifty cents an hour is little enough with which they can maintain families. If we make any change at all, it will be to increase the number of hours they work."

After stating that his own "Action Committee" has worked "industriously and faithfully" for many weeks to apply the largest number of the survey group's recommendations that are workable, the executive advised Lape.

"I much prefer your cooperation but if you want to make a fight out of this program, you can go your way and I will go mine."

SEWER PROJECT GIVEN MORE CASH

An increase from $12,000 to $13,364 in the grant for the Ashville sewer construction program was announced Friday from Washington, D. C.

The grant was made on the village's $40,000 sanitary sewer project.

SENT TO WORKHOUSE

Everett Hawk, 28, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in the Cincinnati workhouse late Friday on a non-support charge, by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace.

Hawk was arrested in Columbus recently by local officers. He formerly resided on Watt-st, this city.

IMPORTANT CITY VOTING IS ONLY TEN DAYS AWAY

Three Issues Stand Out; Mayor, School Board, and Bond Issue.

VILLAGES TO VOTE

Several Council Contests, Too, Provide Interest in Election.

Circleville voters are rapidly nearing an important election, Nov. 5, and today, with the balloting only 10 days distant, three major issues stand out.

They are the mayor's contest; the board of education race, and the $50,000 bond issue to provide the city's share of funds for an addition to the high school building.

The many villages of the county are having their own mayoralty contests, while candidates for justice of peace and township trustees and school boards are also active. In Ashville and Williamsport warm races are developing with E. E. Fraunfelter, incumbent, and Harry Margulis, attorney, contesting in the former town, and William D. Radcliff, attorney; William A. Sells and Frank Maley seeking the Williamsport office.

Cady Versus Graham

Mayor William B. Cady, Democratic nominee for a second term, is opposed by Will J. Graham, choice of the Republicans. Mr. Cady is standing on his record while Mr. Graham has outlined a comprehensive platform on which he bases his campaign.

Other contests in the city are: for auditor, Miss Lillian Young, Democrat, and Mrs. Fannie Kirkpatrick, Republican; for treasurer: William T. J. Howard, Democrat, and Mack Parrett, Republican; council: first ward, C. O. Leist, Democrat, and Dr. C. C. Watts, Republican; second ward, Julius Helwagen, Democrat, unopposed; third ward, Ralph Haines, Democrat, and Harry Steinhauser, Republican; fourth ward, T. M. Barnes, unopposed; councilman-at-large, three to be elected, W. F.

C. B. CALVERT, 67, DIES IN TARLTON

County Resident 25 Years Victim of Heart Ailment; Rites Monday.

Charles B. Calvert, 67, a resident of Pickaway-co for the last 25 years, died at his home in Tarlton early Saturday of a heart ailment.

Mr. Calvert farmed in the Tarlton vicinity before moving to the village about two years ago.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Calvert; two sons, Elta and Jesse of Columbus, and two daughters, Mrs. Goldie Skidmore, Canal Winchester, and Mrs. Sylvia Riffle, Circleville, R.F.D.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. in the Tarlton M. E. church with Rev. Samuel Elsea officiating. Burial will be in Tarlton cemetery in charge of H. E. Defenbaugh & Son.

Result of Corn-Hog Vote Known Monday

The results of the corn-hog referendum voting in Pickaway-co today will not be available until noon Monday, the Farm Bureau reported.

The results of each district in the county are to be filed with the Farm Bureau before noon Monday and the county results wired to Columbus.

WRONG WEIGHT SLIPS

C. E. Sams, coal hauler of near Jackson, paid a fine of $5 and costs to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace Friday for failure to carry proper weight slips.

CORN-HOG VOTE IS HELD TODAY

35,000 Ohioans Expected to Cast Ballots on AAA Question.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26 — Feasability of continuing co-operative control of corn-hog production today was to be decided in a nation-wide poll in which approximately 35,000 Ohio producers, members of 746 community organizations throughout the state, will participate.

The question before the farmers was: Do you favor a corn-hog adjustment program to follow the 1935 program, which expires Nov. 30, 1935?

J. W. Wunichet, Ohio State agricultural extension department in charge of the Ohio program, said unless the results of the referendum indicated a strong desire for continuing the program, no adjustment measures will be offered.

To Be Similar

Should the referendum approve the continuation, by a large majority. Wuichet said the new program probablyg will be similar to the one now in operation.

"There will be a few changes in the program which we will work out in more detail after the referendum is held," he said. But in many instances, the program will be similar to the one now in operation."

Results of the vote in Ohio are expected to be made public about Tuesday.

FINED FOR TAGS

Three Circleville residents were $5 and costs each Friday night by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, for failure to purchase dog tags. They were: Charles Boltenhouse, George Seymour and Francis Laemaster. All arranged to settle their fines.

"THE KID", 21, PLANS TO PRODUCE FILMS

Jackie Coogan Denies Early Marriage As He Becomes Millionaire on Birthday

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26— "The Kid" today became a man—and a millionaire.

Born here 21 years ago today Jackie Coogan talked when he was seven months old, walked two months later, and at age of four was a movie star in a Charlie Chaplin picture, "The Kid" that brought Jackie fame and started a fortune now estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Coogan's father years ago established a trust fund and "the kid" today was to take control of the entire amount.

"I'm going to produce movies just as soon as I graduate from the University of Southern California next June," Coogan said today as he surveyed his new formal attire for a dinner dance his current girl friend, Betty Grable, is giving for him at the Cocanut Grove tonight.

No Immediate Marriage

"And no immediate marriage for me," Coogan added—and smiled, when he learned two of his other good friends, Toby Wing and Ida Lupino, also film players, Betty's precedessors for his affection, were to attend the Grable party. Toby and Jackie once were reported engaged—but it was only a rumor—they said.

Coogan today owns $1,500,000 in southern California real estate—but his allowance when he was a student at Santa Clara university was only $15 a week. When he was six years old he paid an income tax on an annual earning of $52,000. When he was nine years old he started to save $3.50 a week out of his allowance, planning to accumulate $100 and start his own movie company. When he was 10 years old he invested $500,000 in real estate. 9 year previously he had received that amount in one check from a studio for picture work.

Coogan declined to discuss in detail the fortune he started to control today.

"I'm going to be very careful with all funds," he said.

Coogan's favorite movie stars always have been Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

PICK E. A. BROWN AND C. E. HILL TO LEAD RED CROSS

Former Chairman of City Drive, Latter in County; Dates Set.

Chairmen for the roll call of the local chapter of Red Cross, to be staged between Armistice day and Thanksgiving, were announced Saturday morning.

Attorney E. A. Brown, E. Main-st, will be chairman of the city drive, and C. E. Hill, funeral director of Williamsport, will be county chairman.

The organization also announced the formation of a disaster relief committee composed of Carl C. Leist, E. C. Ebert, Frank Lynch, Harry Bartholmew, and Russell Imler.

Dr. E. L. Montgomery has been chosen as instructor for a first aid course for Boy Scouts to be given by the organization.

The county schools in cooperation with the Red Cross will sponsor an annual home inspection campaign to eliminate accidents, Oct. 28 to Nov. 2.

Inspection slips will be distributed to the children to check their homes for hazards. Certificates attached to the slips are to be returned to the teachers.

The inspection sheets explain more than one-third of all fatal accidents and nearly half of all accidental injuries are sustained in and about the home. Last year there were 34,500 lives lost in homes; approximately 150,000 people maimed for life, and injuries were sustained by nearly 5,000,000 persons.

The reports lists six inspections as follows:

1. Stairways and steps are kept clear, repaired, lighted; porches and balconies have secure railings; toys and utensils are properly stored; a step ladder is available in the home.

2. Safety matches are used, kept

Finger-Man?

Albert Stern, alias Stein, of New York, was found slain, in his hotel room in Newark, N. J. He was being sought as the trigger man for the seven murders in quick succession in the New York area. Dutch Schultz, No. 1 New York public enemy, was one of the latest victims.

DAVEY SCORNS HIGHWAY CUTS

Writes Lape to "Cross Off" $1,000,000 Slash; Ready to Fight.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25 — While conceding that there are "many valuable suggestions" in the Sherrill government survey report, Governor Davey today turned thumbs down on the recommended $1,100,000 savings in the highway department.

"Here is $1,100,000 you can cross off your list of proposed savings at the beginning," the governor wrote Herbert Lape, chairman of the "How About It" committee who had urged speed in effecting economies.

"You propose to save $1,100,000 by cutting the wages of laborers from 50 cents per hour to 40 cents," Davey wrote Lape. "In other words, you are willing to take it out of the poor laborers and give it to an extravagantly managed state university.

"I will never consent to cutting the wages of highway department laborers for this or any other purpose. Fifty cents an hour is little enough with which they can maintain families. If we make any change at all, it will be to increase the number of hours they work."

After stating that his own "Action Committee" has worked "industriously and faithfully" for many weeks to apply the largest number of the survey group's recommendations that are workable, the executive advised Lape.

"I much prefer your cooperation, but if you want to make a fight out of this program, you can go your way and I will go mine."

SEWER PROJECT GIVEN MORE CASH

An increase from $12,000 to $13,364 in the grant for the Ashville sewer construction program was announced Friday from Washington, D. C.

The grant was made on the village's $40,000 sanitary sewer project.

SENT TO WORKHOUSE

Everett Hawk, 28, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in the Cincinnati workhouse late Friday on a non-support charge, by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace.

Hawk was arrested in Columbus recently for local officers. He formerly resided on Watt-st, this city.

IMPORTANT CITY VOTING IS ONLY TEN DAYS AWAY

Three Issues Stand Out; Mayor, School Board, and Bond Issue.

VILLAGES TO VOTE

Several Council Contests, Too, Provide Interest in Election.

Circleville voters are rapidly nearing an important election, Nov. 5, and today, with the balloting only 10 days distant, three major issues stand out.

They are the mayor's contest; the board of education race, and the $50,000 bond issue to provide the city's share of funds for an addition to the high school building.

The many villages of the county are having their own mayoralty contests, while candidates for justice of peace and township trustees and school boards are also active. In Ashville and Williamsport warm races are developing with E. E. Fraunfelter, incumbent, and Harry Margulis, attorney, contesting in the former town, and William D. Radcliff, attorney; William A. Sells and Frank Maley seeking the Williamsport office.

Cady Versus Graham

Mayor William B. Cady, Democratic nominee for a second term, is opposed by Will J. Graham, choice of the Republicans. Mr. Cady is standing on his record while Mr. Graham has outlined a comprehensive platform on which he bases his campaign.

Other contests in the city are: for auditor, Miss Lillian Young, Democrat, and Mrs. Fannie Kirkpatrick, Republican; for treasurer: William T. J. Howard, Democrat, and Mack Parrett, Republican; council: first ward, C. O. Leist, Democrat, and Dr. C. C. Watts, Republican; second ward, Julius Helwagen, Democrat, unopposed; third ward, Ralph Haines, Democrat, and Harry Steinhauser, Republican; fourth ward, T. M. Barnes, unopposed; councilman-at-large, three to be elected, W. F.

TOWNSENDS' CONVENTION AT CLIMAX

Resolution to Call for Townsend Plan on National Ballotts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—With all the fervor of an old-time revival meeting, the first national convention of the Townsend ($200 monthly for everyone over 60) clubs went into its third day today.

More than 6,000 gray-haired delegates from every state in the union jammed Chicago's largest hotel as lieutenants of their leader, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, retired California physician, outlined the beauties to come possibly early in 1936 when congress approves the Townsend plan."

Many of the delegates past 70 70 years of age, sat with tears streaming down their cheeks as they sang old hymns and songs that were popular in America 50 years ago. To the strains of a mellow pipe organ the oldsters lifted their voices, filling a huge hall seating 3,500, several smaller halls and surrounding corridors with melody.

Await Resolutions

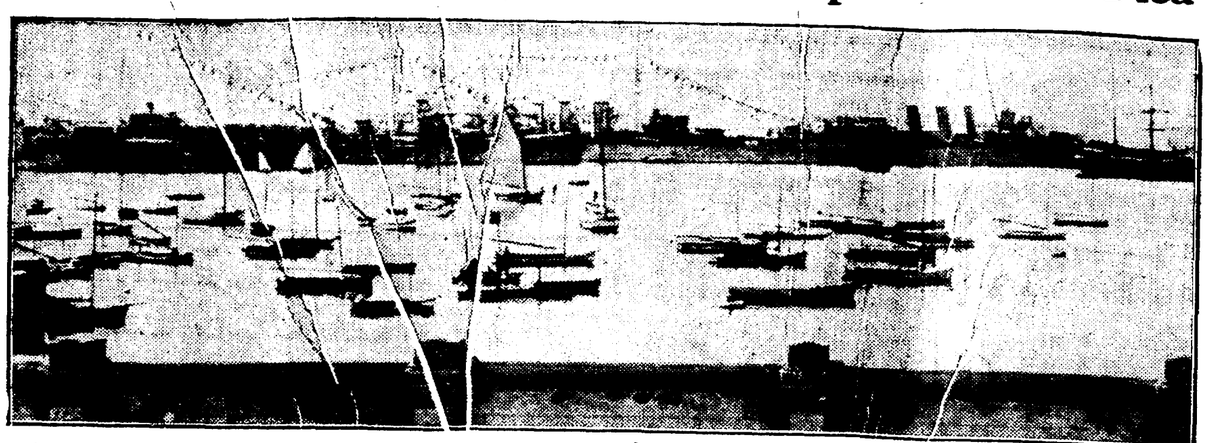
Keen interest was shown among the delegates in the report of the resolutions committee, slated to be delivered to the convention this afternoon. Among the resolutions may be one calling for a national campaign to place the Townsend old age plan on ballots in the nation-wide election next year. This resolution was offered by a group of Cleveland, O., Townsendites.

Later in the day Harry L. Brass of Washington was to address the delegates on The Press and the Townsend Plan" and Martin F. Smith, congressman from Oklahoma, was to speak on "The Sovereign Power of a United People."

More than 2,000 delegates have purchased tickets at $2 to a banquet to honor Dr. Townsend tonight. Sheridan Downey of Sacramento, Calif., will be the toastmaster. Judge Gomer Smith of Oklahoma and M. Clifford Townsend, will be the chief speakers.

The convention will come to a grand finale Sunday afternoon with a mamoth gathering in the national amphitheatre.

British Fleet Hovering at Suez, Despite French Plea



Ignoring French pleas to demobilize vast concentration in Mediterranean, Britain is continuing to keep harbors at Alexandria and other key points crammed with fighting ships. But gay pennants fly on these men-o'-war waiting at Alexandria to blockade western end of Suez if need be.

FOUR MISSING IN FOREST FIRE

Homes of Several Film Stars Damaged; Several Are Refugees.

MALIBU BEACH, Cal., Oct. 26—Four men were believed trapped today by the timber and brush fire which has been raging on a 26-mile front since late Tuesday, causing losses of millions of dollars and endangering the properties of scores of movie stars.

The four men, all members of fire fighting crew which have been battling the holocaust since its inception, were feared trapped in the Malibu mountain region, near here.

Airplanes circled the monster furnace seeking the men.

Although the fire was reported out of control in the mountain region, palatial homes of film stars in the beach colony were believed out of danger from the blaze.

The home of Norman Foster was slightly damaged by flying sparks, while those of Louise Fazenda, Jack Warner, Edmund Lowe, Constance and John Bennett, and Richard Barthelmess, remained unscathed.

In the Malibu lake colony owners were ordered to evacuate as a brisk wind flared today. Sir Guy Standing, British naval hero and famous actor, moved priceless treasures from his $500,000 mansion. The ranch home of Clarence Brown, film director, also was in the path of the roaring inferno.

Among the fleeing refugees were Gladys Swarthout, Buster Crabbee and Katherine De Mille, who had been on location in the district.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout troop No. 3 enjoyed a jolly time at Memorial hall Thursday evening when Regina Thornton was captain and Mrs. Dauenhauer was just another Girl Scout. The girls had so much fun they didn't want to go home. Plans were made for the following month. We were very proud of our display in Friedman's window during Pumpkin show week. Instead of receiving cash prizes we worked for our merit badges.

Those to receive badges were as follows:

Handicraft, Norma Jean Brown;

Sewing, Betty Betz and Pollyanna Friedman;

Nature, Betty Betz;

Canning, Betty Jackson and Eleanor McAbbee.

BOXER DENIES MASS KILLING

Named by Woman as Slayer of Six in Washington State Cottage.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 26—Still denying connection with the mass murder of six persons in a cottage at Erland's Point, March 28, 1934, Leo Hall, 33, ex-boxer and one-time Seattle shipyard employe, was heavily guarded today in the county jail.

Hall was named as the mass slayer by Mrs. Peggy Paulos, 27, former Bremerton beer parlor waitress, who declared she accompanied Hall to the cottage with robbery as the motive.

First degree murder charges were filed against Hall yesterday in Kitsap Superior court. He was specifically accused of slaying Eugene Chenevert, one time vaudeville singer. Chenevert was one of the six victims.

Prosecutor Warren Miller declared Hall would be tried for the murder of one or more of the remaining victims should he be acquitted of Chenevert's murder.

Other Ohio county champions are: Lester Galloway, Van Wert; Niel Ricketts, Van Wert, shock husking; Ulace O'Dell, Wayne township, Butler county.

WOMAN ENIGMA IN MOB DEATHS

Police Believe Woman Who Named Herself Schultz' Wife "Double".

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26— Out of the amazing hodgepodge of clues and theories in the gangland "execution" of Dutch Schultz and three of his aides, one vitally important and breath-taking question popped up today to plague police on both sides of the Hudson river:

What is the true status of the red-headed woman who said she was the "legal contract" wife of the slain underworld king?

Deputy Police Chief Haller of Newark admitted this morning he was completely baffled by the story told by the woman, who whispered words of encouragement to the dying gangster as he tossed deleriously on his cot in city hospital Thursday night, and who subsequently was subjected to rigorous police quizzing.

Haller, in fact, appeared to give some credence to a fantastic and bizarre theory that the woman, representing herself as Mrs. Shultz may have been nothing more than a "double" . . . a woman hired to pose as the one-time beer baron's wife during his stay in Newark.

Released in $10,000 bail as a material witness, the "widow" promptly vanished, leaving police to pore over a sheaf of love letters sent to Schultz by a woman who signed herself "Mommy." These letters were accompanied by pictures of the writer and her two children. But the photograph of the woman was not that of the Schultz "widow" and the children were too old to be the racketeer's offspring.

Pupils to Receive Cards Wednesday, Announce

The first report cards of the year will be distributed throughout all grades next Wednesday.

The cards this year will be an innovation in several important respects. At a special meeting of the Board of Education, which met at the call of President Charles H. May last Tuesday evening, the recommendations of the report card committee were partially adopted.

This committe was appointed by the city teachers' association last January and consisted of Miss Gordon, Miss Hamilton, Mr. Lea, Miss Neuding, Miss Walters, Mr. Gephart, and Mr. Fischer.

The committee worked arduously on the report card revision throughout the spring months. Data on up-to-date report card procedure was assembled from leading schools throughout the United States. From this material the committee formulated their recommendations to the Board, which has discussed the recommendations intimately at their last several meetings.

The new Circleville pupils' report will be considerable simplified over the old. It will be in card form instead of folder.

Major among the changes will be the adoption of the letter system instead of grading by numbers. The letters A, B, C, D and F will be used. The letter A will cover the range from 93 to 100; B, from 85 to 92; C from 77 to 84; D, from 70 to 76; and F, below 70.

The letter system of marking is nothing new. It has been in common practice for years. Its chief advantage lies in the fact that the teacher is allowed a wider range of grading, and hence, can grade more fairly.

It is generally conceded among educators, for instance, that no teacher can decide whether a pupil should receive a 90 in history or 92. Grading simply is not capable of being reduced to so fine a degree of accuracy.

High, low and median class grades will no longer be included in the new report card. It has long been felt that so large an accumulation of grades on one card has served to confuse both pupil and parent. The new method will therefore be much simpler than the old.

On the card appears this paragraph: "The success of the school depends to a considerable extent upon the cooperation received from the home. Patrons and friends are cordially invited to visit the school at any time to confer with the superintendent, principal or teacher."

There will be three honor rolls this year in the upper grades. The first roll will include those pupils who receive all A's; the second, those who have one B with all other grades A; and the third, those whose cards show at least one A with no grade below B.

This year all high school pupils who are on any of the three honor rolls will be excused from those eighth periods on which they have no extra-curricular activities.

Eleven Pupils Prize Winners

Students of Circleville high school dominated the prize winners of the Pumpkin Show this year when eleven boys and girls came away with blue ribbons and prize money.

Miss Anne Thacher, a Senior miss, was the first of the prize winners by being selected 'Miss Pumpkin Show of 1935."

There were many other prize winners, they included: Hilaire Haecker, Marjorie Leach and Dick Mills in the Dog Show, and Gayle Wolfe in the Old Vehicle parade.

Jane Littleton proved that she is a good baker by winning a prize in the cake contest.

Robert Anderson and J. Jackson won prizes with their pet rabbits and Jimmy Moffitt captured a blue ribbon in the horse show.

The high school also furnished prize winners in the Comic Parade when Eleanor Radcliff and Morton Reichelderfer won first and second prizes, respectively.

Many other interesting entries were also made in the Pumpkin Show by Circleville school students.

CLASS TOURNAMENT

The Girls' Class Volley Ball tournament was opened Friday with a game between the seniors and the sophomores.

The schedule of games for the remainder of the season is as follows:

Juniors vs. Freshmen—Monday.
Juniors vs. Sophomores—Tuesday.
Seniors vs. Freshmen—Thursday.
Sophomores vs. Freshmen—Friday
Seniors vs. Juniors—Friday.

Jean Harper, Louise Bowsher, Betty Bowsher and Betty Betts are captains of the senior, sophomore, junior and freshman teams, respectively.

Ellen Clark will referee the games. Ruby Chalfin will serve as umpire. Mary C. Trump and Rosemary Neuding are the scorekeeper and timekepers, while Benadine Yates and Jane Drum are the linesman.

October
(An Editorial)

While poets rave of June, October is one of our most beautiful months of the year. The first early frosts sometimes occur during this month, but cold weather does not come to stay. We usually have bright sunny days followed by crisp bracing nights. The person who is able to spend this month out-of-doors is very fortunate.

In country regions the chief beauties of the month consist in the deepening of the coloring of the foliage.

One of the most conspicuous things about October is the changing of the color. It is intensely interesting to watch how the migrating birds seem to come out of nothing but air.

The asters and goldenrod are now at their best.

To an observant eye, many little changes are presented which show how rapidly autumn is advancing. The flocks are now driven to the fold of an evening, for the nights are becoming too cold for them to remain in the fields.

October is a busy day for the birds. It might be called the sparrows month, however, so numerous and so busy are they everywhere. They are seed eaters and the dry fields and meadows furnish them feasts. The farmer should do his best to attract these birds for the millions of weed seeds they devour will, if allowed to fall by the ground and grow, do untold harm to his next year's crops.

The woods never looked more beautiful than from the close of September to the middle of October, for by that time it seems as if nature has exhausted all of her choicest colors on the foliage. We see the rich burnished bronze of the oak; red of many hues, up the gaudiest scarlet; every shade of yellow; purple rising from the light lilac to the darkest velvet of the pansy streaked with jet.

Though a melancholy feeling is associated with October, there occurs frequently in it some of the finest and most exhilarating weather of the year. Frosts in the mornings and evenings are common.

October is also a busy time for the farmer who is garnering the apples, pumpkins, nuts and all the things with which his cellar will be filled for the winter so near at hand.

PEP ASSEMBLY HELD WEDNESDAY

The Pep assembly held Wednesday afternoon proved to be a very enthusiastic gathering.

During the meeting persons were called for brief talks. Ruth Robinson, speaking for the Sophomore class, pledged their support for the team.

Anne Vierebome, president of the Senior Girl Reserves, requested the student body to back up the team.

John Griffith, a member of the football squad, told the student body how they might encourage the team.

Mary Elizabeth Groce, president of the Girls' Glee club, expressed the hope that we have a fighting team.

The faculty was represented by Miss Ryan and Coach Landrum, who spoke briefly.

New vigor marked the cheers, and a new one was introduced by Dorothy Beaty and Marvene Wallace led in the cheering.

STOOGE CLUB PLANS PROGRAM

Plans for the coming assembly to be given by the Stooge club for the high school were taken up in the meeting Wednesday evening.

The club plans to present one of the most interesting assemblies of the year featuring a Major Bowes' amateur hour. This novel feature will be presented on Monday, November 4.

Every one of the nineteen members of this energetic organization will take part in the program.

The club plans to invite all Stooge Dads as their guests for this assembly.

Mr. Cress, advisor of the club, is supervising the program.

NAME FOUR GROUPS AT E. M. S. MEETING

At an E. M. S. meeting Monday afternoon the club was divided into four groups; novel, short story, poetry and dramatics. Each group is to take charge of two meetings throughout the year.

The short story group will have charge of the meeting on November 5. The refreshment committee for this meeting includes Ruby Chalfin, Tillie Davis, Burn Jones, and Katherine Moore.

Plans were discussed for the assembly program to be presented on December 2. Eleanor Brown, Emily Gunning, Richard Harman, Burn Jones, and Anne Vierebome have charge of the program.

All the meetings will be held at the school this year.

The pins for this organization will be ordered in the near future These pins are gold and have the Greek letters, E. M. S., inscribed upon them.

PLAN DAD'S DAY FOR NEXT WEEK

Next Friday's football game with Marysville will be observed as Dad's Day at C. H. S.

The fathers of the members of the squad will be the guests of the school.

Each Dad will wear the number of his son's scarlet jersey on his back.

A huge banner announcing the event, is being painted by John Griffith and will be displayed on the field.

Plans are underway to have photographs taken of dad and his boy for possible use in the 1935-36 "Circle".

The following dads are expected to take part in the festivities: Messrs. Arthur Adkins, Sherman Barr, Harold Conrad, R. P. Cook, Theodore Drake, George Fickardt, William Friley, Charles Garner, F. G. Glitt, Lawrence Goeller, George Griffith, B .H. Harden, J. Wray Henry, Harry Hosler, Clark Hunsicker, Clarence Melson, Elmer Merriman, Frank McGinnis, N. T. Weldon, E. E. Wolf, C. M. White, Nathan Perkins, Frank Rader, D. E. Ruff, W. J. Smith and Charles Weaver.

Two of the squad members will be represented by their mothers, Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson and Mrs. Margaret Mills.

The Circleville high school band will also be on the scene, as usual, furnishing a large part of the entertainment.

RADER SECOND ROTARY GUEST

For the next three weeks, George Rader, a Senior boy, will attend the meetings of the Rotary club at the Coffee shop. At the end of this time he will speak of his observations while at the club.

George is the second senior to attend such meetings, the first being John Griffith. The Rotary hopes to receive valuable information from the observations of these boys.

Dick Plum will be the third Senior boy to attend the meetings.

Question: Do you prefer numbers or letters in our grading system?

JANE DRUM, SENIOR: Numbers give the student a more accurate account of what he is really doing. If a student has worked harder one grading period than another, he appreciates the few points gain in his grade, while if letters were used, he would probably get the same grade and perhaps become discouraged.

ALICE GRINER, SENIOR: When a student is graded by numbers rather than letters, he is better able to realize the progress or decline which he has made in his work between the grading periods.

There is much difference between the value of letters. For instance a student who has earned a grade of 92 may become discouraged because he receives the same mark as those who deserved an 85. Then, too, this system encourages competition by more exact estimates of work accomplished.

RUBY CHALFIN, JUNIOR — The plan of using letters is the better plan, because when a person is graded with numbers he is inclined to think he is worth just that much and no more. A student shouldn't be graded that way. He should be graded on an average and the only way to do so is by grading with letters.

DONALD HENRY, JUNIOR: We should be graded by letters because it makes it much easier and more convenient for everyone concerned. It also reduces the inclination on the part of the faculty to show partiality.

ROBERT OWENS, FRESHMAN: The parents can keep in contact with the work being done by the student more directly when numbers are used. They can form a more exact estimate of the work the student is doing.

JESSIE DRESBACH, JUNIOR: When numbers are used, both the student and his parents can get a more exact knowledge of his ability. He knows exactly how much he has improved since he was last graded.

HILAIRE HAECKER, SENIOR: In my opinion the people who originated the idea of grading by numbers must have been a greedy, unbalanced and, if I may use slang, a "crazy" bunch.

So far as I know, the only man who can grade a person to the nth degree is God.

The cause of cheating is the fact that one student becomes jealous of another who receives possible one or two points higher than he and therefore wants to get higher grades even though he has to do it by dishonest methods.

It seems to me that no better plan could be arrived at than the proposed letter system.

TOWNSENDS' CONVENTION AT CLIMAX

Resolution to Call for Townsend Plan on National Ballotts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—With all the fervor of an old-time revival meeting, the first national convention of the Townsend ($200 monthly for everyone over 60) clubs went into its third day today.

More than 6,000 gray-haired delegates from every state in the union jammed Chicago's largest hotel as lieutenants of their leader, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, retired California physician, outlined the beauties to come possibly early in 1936 when congress approves the Townsend plan."

Many of the delegates past 70 70 years of age, sat with tears streaming down their cheeks as they sang old hymns and songs that were popular in America 50 years ago. To the strains of a mellow pipe organ the oldsters lifted their voices, filling a huge hall seating 3,500, several smaller halls and surrounding corridors with melody.

Await Resolutions

Keen interest was shown among the delegates in the report of the resolutions committee, slated to be delivered to the convention this afternoon. Among the resolutions may be one calling for a national campaign to place the Townsend old age plan on ballots in the nation-wide election next year. This resolution was offered by a group of Cleveland, O., Townsendites.

Later in the day Harry L. Brass of Washington was to address the delegates on The Press and the Townsend Plan" and Martin F. Smith, congressman from Oklahoma, was to speak on "The Sovereign Power of a United People."

More than 2,000 delegates have purchased tickets at $2 to a banquet to honor Dr. Townsend tonight. Sheridan Downey of Sacramento, Calif., will be the toastmaster. Judge Gomer Smith of Oklahoma and M. Clifford Townsend, will be the chief speakers.

The convention will come to a grand finale Sunday afternoon with a mamoth gathering in the national amphitheatre.

British Fleet Hovering at Suez, Despite French Plea

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout troop No. 3 enjoyed a jolly time at Memorial hall Thursday evening when Regina Thornton was captain and Mrs. Dauenhauer was just another Girl Scout. The girls had so much fun they didn't want to go home. Plans were made for the following month. We were very proud of our display in Friedman's window during Pumpkin show week. Instead of receiving cash prizes we worked for our merit badges.

Those to receive badges were as follows:

Handicraft, Norma Jean Brown;

Sewing, Betty Betz and Pollyanna Friedman;

Nature, Betty Betz;

Canning, Betty Jackson and Eleanor McAbbee.

FOUR MISSING IN FOREST FIRE

Homes of Several Film Stars Damaged; Several Are Refugees.

MALIBU BEACH, Cal., Oct. 26—Four men were believed trapped today by the timber and brush fire which has been raging on a 26-mile front since late Tuesday, causing losses of millions of dollars and endangering the properties of scores of movie stars.

The four men, all members of fire fighting crew which have been battling the holocaust since its inception, were feared trapped in the Malibu mountain region, near here.

Airplanes circled the monster furnace seeking the men.

Although the fire was reported out of control in the mountain region, palatial homes of film stars in the beach colony were believed out of danger from the blaze.

The home of Norman Foster was slightly damaged by flying sparks, while those of Louise Fazenda, Jack Warner, Edmund Lowe, Constance and John Bennett, and Richard Barthelmess, remained unscathed.

In the Malibu lake colony owners were ordered to evacuate as a brisk wind flared today. Sir Guy Standing, British naval hero and famous actor, moved priceless treasures from his $500,000 mansion. The ranch home of Clarence Brown, film director, also was in the path of the roaring inferno.

Among the fleeing refugees were Gladys Swarthout, Buster Crabbee and Katherine De Mille, who had been on location in the district.

BOXER DENIES MASS KILLING

Named by Woman as Slayer of Six in Washington State Cottage.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 26—Still denying connection with the mass murder of six persons in a cottage at Erland's Point, March 28, 1934, Leo Hall, 33, ex-boxer and one-time Seattle shipyard employe, was heavily guarded today in the county jail.

Hall was named as the mass slayer by Mrs. Peggy Paulos, 27, former Bremerton beer parlor waitress, who declared she accompanied Hall to the cottage with robbery as the motive.

First degree murder charges were filed against Hall yesterday in Kitsap Superior court. He was specifically accused of slaying Eugene Chenevert, one time vaudeville singer. Chenevert was one of the six victims.

Prosecutor Warren Miller declared Hall would be tried for the murder of one or more of the remaining victims should he be acquitted of Chenevert's murder.

Other Ohio county champions are: Lester Galloway, Van Wert; Niel Ricketts, Van Wert, shock husking; Ulace O'Dell, Wayne township, Butler county.

WOMAN ENIGMA IN MOB DEATHS

Police Believe Woman Who Named Herself Schultz' Wife "Double".

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26— Out of the amazing hodgepodge of clues and theories in the gangland "execution" of Dutch Schultz and three of his aides, one vitally important and breath-taking question popped up today to plague police on both sides of the Hudson river:

What is the true status of the red-headed woman who said she was the "legal contract" wife of the slain underworld king?

Deputy Police Chief Haller of Newark admitted this morning he was completely baffled by the story told by the woman, who whispered words of encouragement to the dying gangster as he tossed deleriously on his cot in city hospital Thursday night, and who subsequently was subjected to rigorous police quizzing.

Haller, in fact, appeared to give some credence to a fantastic and bizarre theory that the woman, representing herself as Mrs. Shultz may have been nothing more than a "double" . . . a woman hired to pose as the one-time beer baron's wife during his stay in Newark.

Released in $10,000 bail as a material witness, the "widow" promptly vanished, leaving police to pore over a sheaf of love letters sent to Schultz by a woman who signed herself "Mommy." These letters were accompanied by pictures of the writer and her two children. But the photograph of the woman was not that of the Schultz "widow" and the children were too old to be the racketeer's offspring.

Pupils to Receive Cards Wednesday, Announce

The first report cards of the year will be distributed throughout all grades next Wednesday.

The cards this year will be an innovation in several important respects. At a special meeting of the Board of Education, which met at the call of President Charles H. May last Tuesday evening, the recommendations of the report card committee were partially adopted.

This committe was appointed by the city teachers' association last January and consisted of Miss Gordon, Miss Hamilton, Mr. Lea, Miss Neuding, Miss Walters, Mr. Gephart, and Mr. Fischer.

The committee worked arduously on the report card revision throughout the spring months. Data on up-to-date report card procedure was assembled from leading schools throughout the United States. From this material the committee formulated their recommendations to the Board, which has discussed the recommendations intimately at their last several meetings.

The new Circleville pupils' report will be considerable simplified over the old. It will be in card form instead of folder.

Major among the changes will be the adoption of the letter system instead of grading by numbers. The letters A, B, C, D and F will be used. The letter A will cover the range from 93 to 100; B, from 85 to 92; C from 77 to 84; D, from 70 to 76; and F, below 70.

The letter system of marking is nothing new. It has been in common practice for years. Its chief advantage lies in the fact that the teacher is allowed a wider range of grading, and hence, can grade more fairly.

It is generally conceded among educators, for instance, that no teacher can decide whether a pupil should receive a 90 in history or 92. Grading simply is not capable of being reduced to so fine a degree of accuracy.

High, low and median class grades will no longer be included in the new report card. It has long been felt that so large an accumulation of grades on one card has served to confuse both pupil and parent. The new method will therefore be much simpler than the old.

On the card appears this paragraph: "The success of the school depends to a considerable extent upon the cooperation received from the home. Patrons and friends are cordially invited to visit the school at any time to confer with the superintendent, principal or teacher."

There will be three honor rolls this year in the upper grades. The first roll will include those pupils who receive all A's; the second, those who have one B with all other grades A; and the third, those whose cards show at least one A with no grade below B.

This year all high school pupils who are on any of the three honor rolls will be excused from those eighth periods on which they have no extra-curricular activities.

Eleven Pupils Prize Winners

Students of Circleville high school dominated the prize winners of the Pumpkin Show this year when eleven boys and girls came away with blue ribbons and prize money.

Miss Anne Thacher, a Senior miss, was the first of the prize winners by being selected 'Miss Pumpkin Show of 1935."

There were many other prize winners, they included: Hilaire Haecker, Marjorie Leach and Dick Mills in the Dog Show, and Gayle Wolfe in the Old Vehicle parade.

Jane Littleton proved that she is a good baker by winning a prize in the cake contest.

Robert Anderson and J. Jackson won prizes with their pet rabbits and Jimmy Moffitt captured a blue ribbon in the horse show.

The high school also furnished prize winners in the Comic Parade when Eleanor Radcliff and Morton Reichelderfer won first and second prizes, respectively.

Many other interesting entries were also made in the Pumpkin Show by Circleville school students.

CLASS TOURNAMENT

The Girls' Class Volley Ball tournament was opened Friday with a game between the seniors and the sophomores.

The schedule of games for the remainder of the season is as follows:

Juniors vs. Freshmen—Monday.
Juniors vs. Sophomores—Tuesday.
Seniors vs. Freshmen—Thursday.
Sophomores vs. Freshmen—Friday
Seniors vs. Juniors—Friday.

Jean Harper, Louise Bowsher, Betty Bowsher and Betty Betts are captains of the senior, sophomore, junior and freshman teams, respectively.

Ellen Clark will referee the games. Ruby Chalfin will serve as umpire. Mary C. Trump and Rosemary Neuding are the scorekeeper and timekepers, while Benadine Yates and Jane Drum are the linesman.

October
(An Editorial)

While poets rave of June, October is one of our most beautiful months of the year. The first early frosts sometimes occur during this month, but cold weather does not come to stay. We usually have bright sunny days followed by crisp bracing nights. The person who is able to spend this month out-of-doors is very fortunate.

In country regions the chief beauties of the month consist in the deepening of the coloring of the foliage.

One of the most conspicuous things about October is the changing of the color. It is intensely interesting to watch how the migrating birds seem to come out of nothing but air.

The asters and goldenrod are now at their best.

To an observant eye, many little changes are presented which show how rapidly autumn is advancing. The flocks are now driven to the fold of an evening, for the nights are becoming too cold for them to remain in the fields.

October is a busy day for the birds. It might be called the sparrows month, however, so numerous and so busy are they everywhere. They are seed eaters and the dry fields and meadows furnish them feasts. The farmer should do his best to attract these birds for the millions of weed seeds they devour will, if allowed to fall by the ground and grow, do untold harm to his next year's crops.

The woods never looked more beautiful than from the close of September to the middle of October, for by that time it seems as if nature has exhausted all of her choicest colors on the foliage. We see the rich burnished bronze of the oak; red of many hues, up the gaudiest scarlet; every shade of yellow; purple rising from the light lilac to the darkest velvet of the pansy streaked with jet.

Though a melancholy feeling is associated with October, there occurs frequently in it some of the finest and most exhilarating weather of the year. Frosts in the mornings and evenings are common.

October is also a busy time for the farmer who is garnering the apples, pumpkins, nuts and all the things with which his cellar will be filled for the winter so near at hand.

PEP ASSEMBLY HELD WEDNESDAY

The Pep assembly held Wednesday afternoon proved to be a very enthusiastic gathering.

During the meeting persons were called for brief talks. Ruth Robinson, speaking for the Sophomore class, pledged their support for the team.

Anne Vlerebome, president of the Senior Girl Reserves, requested the student body to back up the team.

John Griffith, a member of the football squad, told the student body how they might encourage the team.

Mary Elizabeth Groce, president of the Girls' Glee club, expressed the hope that we have a fighting team.

The faculty was represented by Miss Ryan and Coach Landrum, who spoke briefly.

New vigor marked the cheers, and a new one was introduced Dorothy Beaty and Marvene Wallace led in the cheering.

STOOGE CLUB PLANS PROGRAM

Plans for the coming assembly to be given by the Stooge club for the high school were taken up in the meeting Wednesday evening.

The club plans to present one of the most interesting assemblies of the year featuring a Major Bowes' amateur hour. This novel feature will be presented on Monday, November 4.

Every one of the nineteen members of this energetic organization will take part in the program.

The club plans to invite all Stooge Dads as their guests for this assembly.

Mr. Cress, advisor of the club, is supervising the program.

NAME FOUR GROUPS AT E. M. S. MEETING

At an E. M. S. meeting Monday afternoon the club was divided into four groups; novel, short story, poetry, and dramatics. Each group is to take charge of two meetings throughout the year.

The short story group will have charge of the meeting on November 5. The refreshment committee for this meeting includes Ruby Chalfin, Tillie Davis, Burn Jones, and Katherine Moore.

Plans were discussed for the assembly program to be presented on December 2. Eleanor Brown, Emily Gunning, Richard Harman, Burn Jones, and Anne Vierebome have charge of the program.

All the meetings will be held at the school this year.

The pins for this organization will be ordered in the near future These pins are gold and have the Greek letters, E. M. S., inscribed upon them.

PLAN DAD'S DAY FOR NEXT WEEK

Next Friday's football game with Marysville will be observed as Dad's Day at C. H. S.

The fathers of the members of the squad will be the guests of the school.

Each Dad will wear the number of his son's scarlet jersey on his back.

A huge banner announcing the event, is being painted by John Griffith and will be displayed on the field.

Plans are underway to have photographs taken of dad and his boy for possible use in the 1935-36 "Circle".

The following dads are expected to take part in the festivities: Messrs. Arthur Adkins, Sherman Barr, Harold Conrad, R. P. Cook, Theodore Drake, George Fickardt, William Friley, Charles Garner, F. G. Glitt, Lawrence Goeller, George Griffith, B .H. Harden, J. Wray Henry, Harry Hosler, Clark Hunsicker, Clarence Melson, Elmer Merriman, Frank McGinnis, N. T. Weldon, E. E. Wolf, C. M. White, Nathan Perkins, Frank Rader, D. E. Ruff, W. J. Smith and Charles Weaver.

Two of the squad members will be represented by their mothers, Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson and Mrs. Margaret Mills.

The Circleville high school band will also be on the scene, as usual, furnishing a large part of the entertainment.

RADER SECOND ROTARY GUEST

For the next three weeks, George Rader, a Senior boy, will attend the meetings of the Rotary club at the Coffee shop. At the end of this time he will speak of his observations while at the club.

George is the second senior to attend such meetings, the first being John Griffith. The Rotary hopes to receive valuable information from the observations of these boys.

Dick Plum will be the third Senior boy to attend the meetings.

The world is having demonstrated anew the evil of the lust for power. No bloodshed is too great to secure the desired end. But the glory fades and the judgment day comes when a man must give account of himself before God. What can be the answer then to the countless lives lost, the sorrow brought, wives made widows, children made orphans? What avail are treaties and pacts when men trample them under foot. Jesus taught otherwise, "He that would be great among you, let him be servant of all. "No ulterior motive can justify such a war as is being waged in Africa today. These small nations have their right to live. It is their land that is being coveted. God said of old, "Thou shalt not covet." It is the root of many sins. The church more and more preaches righteousness as the first essential to peace. Stand by the church. Go, tomorrow. Take a friend.

OF WHAT PRACTICAL VALUE IS BIBLE READING TODAY?

It has been said that the Bible contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation. Its doctrines are holy; its precepts are binding ; its records are true. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you and comfort to cheer you. Belshazzar's Feast — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Daniel 5:1-31.

We remember Daniel, the prophet, best as the one who was cast into the lions' den for his refusal to cease praying to the true God, and whom God spared from the lions. Our lesson brings us a story that happened earlier.

Belshazzar, King of Babylon, made a feast and drank wine before a thousand guests, using vessels taken from God's temple in Jerusalem. Then God wrote fiery words of judgment on the wall of the banquet hall.

The king in great fear sent for Daniel who interpreted the words: "God hath numbered thy kingdom and ended it; thou art weighed and found wanting; thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

That very night the armies of Cyrus entered the city of Babylon and slew the king and took over his kingdom for the Medes.

The world is having demonstrated anew the evil of the lust for power. No bloodshed is too great to secure the desired end. But the glory fades and the judgment day comes when a man must give account of himself before God. What can be the answer then to the countless lives lost, the sorrow brought, wives made widows, children made orphans? What avail are treaties and pacts when men trample them under foot. Jesus taught otherwise, "He that would be great among you, let him be servant of all. "No ulterior motive can justify such a war as is being waged in Africa today. These small nations have their right to live. It is their land that is being coveted. God said of old, "Thou shalt not covet." It is the root of many sins. The church more and more preaches righteousness as the first essential to peace. Stand by the church. Go, tomorrow. Take a friend.

WHERE ARE THE GHOSTS?

YEARS ago a favorite evening diversion was the telling of ghost stories. The lights would be turned low to give a kind of spirit atmosphere. The flickering fire on the hearth was often the only light, and its weird reflection made the auditors feel creepy.

The narrator would tell the tale in grisly tones. When it was completed, the hearers would look over their shoulders apprehensively, half expecting to see some sheeted form appear in the semi-darkness. In those days many people dared not pass any cemetery at night. Towns usually had some haunted house, some old dwelling which was rented only with great difficulty, since it was supposed to be haunted by some restless spirit who lingered near the scene of his old sorrows. Stories of returning spirits and other supernatural occurrences figures largely in novels.

The attention given to these tales was an indication that many people believed in them. They were ready, if queer noises happened baut a house, to attribute them to ghosts, instead of such natural causes as flapping blinds or the sighing of the wind through cracks in the roof.

Today the ghosts seem to have faded out. If there are any haunted houses, it is doubtful if the owners have any trouble in renting them. The young people no longer dread the cemetery, and they consider it a nice secluded place for their amorous manifestations. And it is many years since anybody has told us any ghost story.

HALLOWE'EN PERFORMANCES

TO YOUNG America, Hallowe'en is one of the great days of the year. At this time the glorious feeling comes over him, that laws are suspended for the time being. The wearisome and oppressive system of regulation, by which his conduct is controlled at other times by stern parents and local government, is lifted for the moment.

All these repressions of his daily life weigh heavily on youth. He constantly desires to show his power by breaking or destroying something, but always he runs up against this strict discipline which the older world forces on him.

But at Hallowe'en, there is celebrated annually a kind of Declaration of Independence for youth. He feels that at last he is given free rein to work out his desires. Not merely that, but the Hallowe'en spirit has often seized him days or weeks in advance of that occasion, and on many previous evenings he has roamed the neighborhood, pulling door-bells and performing tricks dear to his heart.

The American people have much sympathy with youth, sometimes a little too much. So they have long tolerated minor tricks like rapping violently on window panes, overturning porch chairs, and rattling blinds. But when it comes to punching holes through window screens and doing things that cost real money to repair, the adult world frequently decides that Young America is not yet ready for full independence.

When it comes to false fire alarms, bonfires that endanger property, or other serious mischief, Young America needs to realize that there are limits to liberty. Some boys have begun careers of crime by excessive rowdyism at Hallowe'en.

MISSING THE REAL POINT

AT TIMES nearly all of us make hard work of a simple matter, as was the case of the declarer of the following hand, which was sent in as a problem as to how East could most safely fulfill his contract of 3-No Trumps, made as an opening bid.

The opening lead was the 4 of spades. East won the third lead of that suit, then he took 4 diamond tricks and 2 heart tricks, after which he put South in with a spade, giving him 4 spade tricks. This was done with the idea of forcing South either to lead a heart or a club, either of which leads would insure fulfillment of the game bid made. It did, but it also prevented East from all chance of picking up an added trick, doubled and redoubled, with several side bets.

Viewed from the practical standpoint, East's ability to certainly win 9 odd depends upon being able to stop the 5 missing diamonds in 3 tricks. That will give declarer 1 spade trick, 3 heart tricks, 4 diamond tricks and 1 club trick, with the chance of picking up an added trick. Unless East can establish a diamond re-entry in dummy only lucky chance will give him game.

Win the second lead of spades with the Ace. Take two rounds of diamonds, to see if all opposing cards of that suit will drop. Having determined that important fact, lead the Q of diamonds. The only safe discard for South is a spade. Take declarer's two heart tricks, thereby establishing the Q of that suit in dummy. Lead declarer's last diamond. Again South may as well discard a spade. Lead the Q of hearts. Discard one of declarer's spades. The four cards left to each player will be as shown below:

Lead dummy's last heart and discard declarer's lowest club. He does not know which defender has the J of hearts. If North has that card and leads a club, only 3-odd can be made, but if South holds the J of hearts all that player can do is to win his second trick with the heart, take his single good spade, then lead a club. No matter which defender holds the K of clubs, 4-odd must be made.

CHAPTER 36

IT WAS A simple matter for Miranda Van Cleve to introduce Carol Kennedy at the bank where Carol got her first surprise.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Baker," the bank officer greeted Miss Van Cleve who smiled in return before she whispered to Carol:

"It is always good to put aside money in another name."

"Then it is quite regular? There will be no question if my secretary should withdraw the entire sum?" she asked the officer of the bank once more when their business was over. Assured that it was now a simple matter, they left the bank.

"Please, tonight, take these books somewhere where you alone will know where they are. I dare not keep them in my desk any longer."

"I might say that I would like to dine with someone tonight if you could spare me," said Carol. "That will give me an opportunity to go to my own apartment. I have a small safe there."

"Excellent. By the way, does my nephew know your home address?"

"I believe not. The only address he has is that of Dr. Harding's office. In any event, your books will be quite safe in my apartment and in my care, I assure you."

"Carol, my dear, Providence sent you to me and some day you will be well rewarded for a kindness to an old lady."

Carol patted the frail hand on her arm. "You embarrass me when you talk that way. You know some people are meant to be taken care of and others are meant to take care of them. I always wanted to be the taken-care-of type but I guess I'm not meant to be that way. I seem always to find myself doing the other."

"What you need, my dear, is a man to take care of you. I've learned that from a bitter experience. I've led a lonely life and now, in my hour of need, I am at the mercy of others without one of my own kin to help me."

"But you have David," Carol reminded her.

"Yes, I have David, far away as he is. Oh, if only I could reach him! Never mind, one day he will be back and you shall meet him. He's a fine boy, Carol, and I want you to know each other. He will like you, too.

"Matchmaking, aren't you?" Carol chided.

"Sillier things than that have happened," Miranda said tartly.

"Don't you know that whenever you say 'you'd like her' or 'you'll like him' that those two people always detest each other at sight?" Carol tried getting the older woman's mind off her problem and fit that vein they talked until they had arrived back at the Van Cleve residence.

"Won't you have tea with us in the drawing room, Aunt Miranda?" Alice Van Cleve came into Miranda's sitting room about five.

"Thank you, no, Alice. We walked today and I am a trifle fatigued. Besides, Miss Kennedy is dining out and before she goes I should like to ask her some questions about a bridge hand that troubles me."

"Bridge hands can wait, auntie. Horton particularly asked me to bring you down for tea. He has brought a friend who is anxious to meet you."

"Anxious to meet me?" Miranda asked in great surprise.

"Yes. Horton had told him how you suffered from rheumatism. He doesn't agree with Dr. Martin that the bland diet is best for you. He happens to be a specialist in such things. He belongs to Horton's bridge club and when Horton told him about you, he remembered it and said that when he came today he would like to meet you. Besides, Horton has told him what a charming lady you are."

Carol and Miranda exchanged glances too quickly for Alice to notice.

"Take my arm, auntie. We won't keep Miss Kennedy; she gets out too seldom." Then turning to Carol with a brief smile. "We appreciate how devoted you are, Miss Kennedy, and I feel we haven't been at all kind allowing you to spend all your time here. By all means, take your time tonight and enjoy yourself."

"What's the name of this doctor?" Carol heard Miranda ask Alice as they walked slowly down the stairs.

"Walter Childers. You must have heard Horton speak of him. They've been playing bridge for years . . ."

Childers. Carol put the name away in her mind for future reference. She heard no more of the conversation but the last view she had of Miranda's back was eloquent with protest and fear. She did not want to go down to that tea. She did not want to meet Dr. Childers.

Carol breathed a sigh of relief. Thank goodness, Dr. Harding would be back in New York the next day and she felt sure that he would relieve all Miss Van Cleve's fears.

Carol was glad to get away from the scene of so much that was disturbing. She walked rapidly across town to her own apartment where she hid the bank books in the safe as she had promised she would. There was no need to hurry back and Carol thought she would take these few hours off to get both relaxation and a little information.

She telephoned Miss Sanford at the woman's hotel where she lived.

"Dinner and an early show at the movies sounds grand," she assured Carol. "So long as it's an inexpensive dinner. Pay day is three days off."

They had little in common to talk about but they chatted as girls do about clothes, the patients at Dr. Harding's office, movies they'd seen and other things which Carol had not come to hear. She waited until they had arrived at coffee and said: "You know an awful lot of people in the medical profession, don't you?"

"The ones I don't know, I know about. I've been in this business for 15 years and, my dear, it's as provincial as any small town. They all talk about each other."

"Did you ever hear of Dr. Childers? Walter Childers? He's a rheumatic specialist." Carol asked casually.

"Did I? Listen, don't go to work for him no matter how badly you need a job," Carol's guest assumed that Carol was looking for another medical position. "Besides he's not a specialist in rheumatics; he specializes in nervous diseases. He has a big private hospital somewhere over in Jersey."

"And why not go to work for him?" Carol hadn't the slightest intention of doing anything like that but since the other girl had given her an opportunity to make inquiries without revealing anything, she would make use of it.

"Oh, I don't know except that . . . well, it's not wise to say what one thinks in this racket but I have a feeling from things I've heard that . . . well, you know a doctor who handles mental cases particularly has to be pretty careful that his reputation is above reproach and—don't dare quote me on this—Dr. Childers' reputation is quite positively NOT above the well-known reproach."

Carol was not surprised to hear that. Her intuitive sense had told her that Miss Miranda's presence was not wanted at tea to discuss diets.

She was nervous during the movies picture show and anxious to get back to Miranda. She felt that her reassurances would be called for.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Rarely has such a diversified and imposing array of stars from the radio, stage and screen been assembled in one picture as in Paramount's "The Big Broadcast of 1936," which comes tomorrow to the Cliftona Theatre, with Jack Oakie, Burns and Allen and Lyda Roberti in the leading roles.

In addition to the regular cast that appears in the fun-provoking comedy are famous personalities who contribute specialty numbers which form a background to the main theme. Bing Crosby, film and radio star, Amos 'n' Andy, world famous for their daily comic blackface sketch on the air waves, Ethel Merman, star of radio and musical comedy hits, Bill Robinson, internationally known negro tap dancer, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles, noted stage and screen comedians, the Nicholas Brothers, negro dancing youngsters, Willie, West and McGinty, and Ray Noble, renowned English band leader and song writer, with his orchestra, all have import roles in the picture.

AT THE CIRCLE

Trying to round up forty pure white horses from the well-stocked ranches around Hollywood required an equestrian Sherlock Holmes. Or so thought the cowboys who searched every nook and cranny seeking the white horses for John Wayne and his rip-roaring gang of forty Singing Riders, now appearing in "Westward Ho," the current attraction Sunday and Monday at the Circle theatre.

AT THE GRAND

James Cagney's is one Hollywood film colony marriage that has stuck through thick and thin.

Jimmy, who has the stellar role in the Warner Bros. production, "The Irish In Us," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Sunday, was married long before he had made a bit on the stage. He and his wife went through a long period of living through a long period in single rooms, cooking over the gas jets, dodging landlords and at times going hungry. Jimmy's spectacular success in pictures has not loosened the bonds made during such times.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Roosevelt Is Fairly Regular Correspondent With King George.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is a fairly regular correspondent with King George of England. The letter writing began after the President's mother was a guest of King George and Queen Mary, and Roosevelt wrote personally to thank them. Since then he has continued to pen in his own hand an occasional letter to the British monarch. . . . War and Navy Department chiefs are planning to take advantage of the war-threatening situation in Europe to launch preparedness drives at the coming session of Congress. Bills providing for an expanded army and navy are now being quietly whipped into shape . . . Florida's hard-working senior Senator Duncan U. Fletcher received the following letter from a worried constituent: "This is to let you know I am against the Townsend old-age pension scheme. I have too many other things to worry about without being compelled by the Government to spend $200 a month." . . . Any doubt as to whether Representative Fred M. Vinson would again sponsor the American Legion's bonus bill at the coming session was dispelled last Sunday. Led by National Commander Ray Murphy, a delegation of state and national veteran leaders journeyed to Ashland, Ky., to participate in a home-town rally staged for Vinson, at which he was acclaimed as the Legion's ball-carrier on the bonus . . . Thirty-one year old Blackwell Smith, retired NRA legal chief, has been succeeded by another youth. He is Burr Ansell, 29-year old Harvard law graduate who broke into the news last spring when he took a sock at the late Huey Long in a crowded Washington dining room. . . . Federal Trade Commission insiders predict that Colonel Charles H. Marsh will be the next chairman of the agency. Judge Ewin L. Davis, present chairman, will step down January 1, in accordance with FTC procedure of rotating the chairmanship.

Doctor Wallace

Two of the nine elaborate suites of offices in the new Supreme Court Building are vacant. Justices McReynolds and Brandeis prefer to do their work at home . . . It is a struggle for Henry Wallace to avoid the practice of medicine. Last Spring he sent to his Iowa friend, Congressman Fred Bierman, a bottle of allantoin as a possible cure for the foot ulcers that had kept Bierman on crutches. It acted like a miracle. Since then Wallace and his Department's Dr. William Robinson, have been flooded with requests for the medicine. (NOTE: Robinson discovered the healing effect of allantoin from experiments with maggots. Knowing that maggots are used by phsicians to heal wounds, he tried to find what gave them that power. It proved to be the substance allantoin, which maggots discharge as they work their way through a wound . . . Robert Fechner doesn't get excited when he hears that mutiny has broken out in one of his CCC camps, as it frequently does. "It must be the cook," he says, knowing that he is spending 50 cents a day on each member, as compared with 27 cents a day on transients in FERA camps . . . A good part of the 6600 pounds of soap powder bought each year for scouring the Capitol is being applied these days in a high-powered housecleaning operation, to be completed before Congress convenes . . .

Minnesota's blind Senator Schall takes his exercise by riding horseback in a Washington suburb.

Radio Probe

The investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company by the Federal Communications Commission may be expanded at the coming session to include radio networks and independent stations. Several Senators, who put over the A. T. & T. probe, are much aroused over numerous complaints of discrimination and censorship by radio operators, and are talking of opening fire on them with a sweeping investigation. . . . In a telegram sent to a number of coal companies asking for urgently needed statistical information, the officially hard-up Bituminous Coal Commission concluded: "Please do not reply collect, as we have no funds to pay for your answer." . . . Bureau of Labor Statistics employment figures for September showed such a marked gain that Commissioner Isador Lubin would not believe them. He telegraphed for a re-check by the 135,000 manufacturers throughout the country who supply the data on which the monthly report is based. This delayed the statement several days, but Lubin refused to issue it until he had satisfied himself that the original booming figures were correct.

Poems That Live

EQUINOCTIAL

The sun of life has crossed the line;
The summer-shine of lengthened light
Faded and failed, till, where I stand,
'Tis equal day and equal night.

One after one, as dwindling hours,
Youth's glowing hopes have dropped away,
And soon may barely leave the gleam
That coldly scores a winter's day.

I am not young; I am not old;
The flush of morn, the sunset calm,
Paling and deepening, each to each,
Meet midway with a solemn charm.

One side I see the summer fields,
Not yet disrobed of all their green;
While westerly, along the hills,
Flame the first tints of frosty sheen.

Ah, middle-point, where cloud and storm
Make battle-ground of this my life!
Where, even-matched, the night and day
Wake round me their September strife!

I bow me to the threatening gale;
I know when that is overpast,
Among the peaceful harvest days,
An Indian summer comes at last!

Why Body Must Maintain Acid-Alkaline Balance

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PEOPLE TALK a great deal of being acid. And like to alkanize themselves to counteract this.

Whether there actually is much acidosis is open to question. Certainly every case of disturbance of the acid-alkaline balance of the body must be rapidly corrected or very serious consequences ensue.

Dr. Clendening

We have very delicate chemical methods of determining the exact reaction of the blood and tissues of the body. We can tell to a nicety whether they are even so slightly acid or not. Of course, acids are harmful, but so are their opposites—the chemical substances which react in an alkaline fashion. An extreme example is caustic soda which will destroy animal tissues. So what we want to strive for is neither acidity nor alkalinity, but a condition of neutrality.

And this is exactly what the body strives for desperately all its life—and manages to maintain to a nicety by a most ingenious set of chemical reactions, carried on by the buffer substances of the blood.

Example of Acidity

An example of acidity in the body frequently seen is the exhaustion that follows extreme muscular effort. We saw when we were examining the chemistry of muscular exercise a day or so ago, that one of the first chemicals to be formed in the body as a result of muscular contraction, is lactic acid. It is formed in considerable quantities, and unless plenty of oxygen gets to the muscles to correct it, it brings about cessation of contraction, and fatigue through its accumulation in the tissues. With our comparatively inadequate method of supplying oxygen to the muscles—as described in the article this week on muscle functioning—this condition comes to every man as a result of more or less violent exertion. When it does arrive, as in the case of the distance runner after a race, he is in a condition of acidosis, and as can be seen from his violent breathing, it is a quite uncomfortable state to be in. Unless enough oxygen is pumped to the muscles to reduce the lactic acid, indeed death will result.

In disease conditions, acidosis is frequently seen, but is usually so serious as to constitute an emergency. Thus, in diabetes, the patients may become sluggish and go into coma, unless they are getting enough insulin. This coma is the result of the accumulation of the ketone bodies which come from the fatty acids, incompletely reduced in the diabetic state.

Under most conditions, however, the body is fully able to compensate for any disturbance in its acid-base balance.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

G. M. W.: "I have heard that eating yeast will cause cancer. Is there any truth in this statement?"

Answer: We do not know the cause of cancer, but certainly yeast has never been considered to be a cause. Considering the amount of bread that is eaten, and also the amount of raw yeast, cancer would be practically universal if this were true.

WHERE ARE THE GHOSTS?

YEARS ago a favorite evening diversion was the telling of ghost stories. The lights would be turned low to give a kind of spirit atmosphere. The flickering fire on the hearth was often the only light, and its weird reflection made the auditors feel creepy.

The narrator would tell the tale in grisly tones. When it was completed, the hearers would look over their shoulders apprehensively, half expecting to see some sheeted form appear in the semi-darkness. In those days many people dared not pass any cemetery at night. Towns usually had some haunted house, some old dwelling which was rented only with great difficulty, since it was supposed to be haunted by some restless spirit who lingered near the scene of his old sorrows. Stories of returning spirits and other supernatural occurrences figures largely in novels.

The attention given to these tales was an indication that many people believed in them. They were ready, if queer noises happened baut a house, to attribute them to ghosts, instead of such natural causes as flapping blinds or the sighing of the wind through cracks in the roof.

Today the ghosts seem to have faded out. If there are any haunted houses, it is doubtful if the owners have any trouble in renting them. The young people no longer dread the cemetery, and they consider it a nice secluded place for their amorous manifestations. And it is many years since anybody has told us any ghost story.

HALLOWE'EN PERFORMANCES

TO YOUNG America, Hallowe'en is one of the great days of the year. At this time the glorious feeling comes over him, that laws are suspended for the time being. The wearisome and oppressive system of regulation, by which his conduct is controlled at other times by stern parents and local government, is lifted for the moment.

All these repressions of his daily life weigh heavily on youth. He constantly desires to show his power by breaking or destroying something, but always he runs up against this strict discipline which the older world forces on him.

But at Hallowe'en, there is celebrated annually a kind of Declaration of Independence for youth. He feels that at last he is given free rein to work out his desires. Not merely that, but the Hallowe'en spirit has often seized him days or weeks in advance of that occasion, and on many previous evenings he has roamed the neighborhood, pulling door-bells and performing tricks dear to his heart.

The American people have much sympathy with youth, sometimes a little too much. So they have long tolerated minor tricks like rapping violently on window panes, overturning porch chairs, and rattling blinds. But when it comes to punching holes through window screens and doing things that cost real money to repair, the adult world frequently decides that Young America is not yet ready for full independence.

When it comes to false fire alarms, bonfires that endanger property, or other serious mischief, Young America needs to realize that there are limits to liberty. Some boys have begun careers of crime by excessive rowdyism at Hallowe'en.

"Excellent. By the way, does my nephew know your home address?"

"I believe not. The only address he has is that of Dr. Harding's office. In any event, your books will be quite safe in my apartment and in my care, I assure you."

"Carol, my dear, Providence sent you to me and some day you will be well rewarded for a kindness to an old lady."

Carol patted the frail hand on her arm. "You embarrass me when you talk that way. You know some people are meant to be taken care of and others are meant to take care of them. I always wanted to be the taken-care-of type but I guess I'm not meant to be that way. I seem always to find myself doing the other."

"What you need, my dear, is a man to take care of you. I've learned that from a bitter experience. I've led a lonely life and now, in my hour of need, I am at the mercy of others without one of my own kin to help me."

"But you have David," Carol reminded her.

"Yes, I have David, far away as he is. Oh, if only I could reach him! Never mind, one day he will be back and you shall meet him. He's a fine boy, Carol, and I want you to know each other. He will like you, too.

"Matchmaking, aren't you?" Carol chided.

"Sillier things than that have happened," Miranda said tartly.

"Don't you know that whenever you say 'you'd like her' or 'you'll like him' that those two people always detest each other at sight?" Carol tried getting the older woman's mind off her problem and in that vein they talked until they had arrived back at the Van Cleve residence.

"Won't you have tea with us in the drawing room, Aunt Miranda?" Alice Van Cleve came into Miranda's sitting room about five.

"Thank you, no, Alice. We walked today and I am a trifle fatigued. Besides, Miss Kennedy is dining out and before she goes I should like to ask her some questions about a bridge hand that troubles me."

"Bridge hands can wait, auntie. Horton particularly asked me to bring you down for tea. He has brought a friend who is anxious to meet you."

"Anxious to meet me?" Miranda asked in great surprise.

"Yes. Horton had told him how you suffered from rheumatism. He doesn't agree with Dr. Martin that the bland diet is best for you. He happens to be a specialist in such things. He belongs to Horton's bridge club and when Horton told him about you, he remembered it and said that when he came today he would like to meet you. Besides, Horton has told him what a charming lady you are."

Carol and Miranda exchanged glances too quickly for Alice to notice.

"Take my arm, auntie. We won't keep Miss Kennedy; she gets out too seldom." Then turning to Carol with a brief smile. "We appreciate how devoted you are, Miss Kennedy, and I feel we haven't been at all kind allowing you to spend all your time here. By all means, take your time tonight and enjoy yourself."

"What's the name of this doctor?" Carol heard Miranda ask Alice as they walked slowly down the stairs.

"Walter Childers. You must have heard Horton speak of him. They've been playing bridge for years . . ."

Childers. Carol put the name away in her mind for future reference. She heard no more of the conversation but the last view she had of Miranda's back was eloquent with protest and fear. She did not want to go down to that tea. She did not want to meet Dr. Childers.

Carol breathed a sigh of relief. Thank goodness, Dr. Harding would be back in New York the next day and she felt sure that he would relieve all Miss Van Cleve's fears.

Carol was glad to get away from the scene of so much that was disturbing. She walked rapidly across town to her own apartment where she hid the bank books in the safe as she had promised she would. There was no need to hurry back and Carol thought she would take these few hours off to get both relaxation and a little information.

She telephoned Miss Sanford at the woman's hotel where she lived.

"Dinner and an early show at the movies sounds grand," she assured Carol. "So long as it's an inexpensive dinner. Pay day is three days off."

They had little in common to talk about but they chatted as girls do about clothes, the patients at Dr. Harding's office, movies they'd seen and other things which Carol had not come to hear. She waited until they had arrived at coffee and said: "You know an awful lot of people in the medical profession, don't you?"

"The ones I don't know, I know about. I've been in this business for 15 years and, my dear, it's as provincial as any small town. They all talk about each other."

"Did you ever hear of Dr. Childers? Walter Childers? He's a rheumatic specialist." Carol asked casually.

"Did I? Listen, don't go to work for him no matter how badly you need a job," Carol's guest assumed that Carol was looking for another medical position. "Besides he's not a specialist in rheumatics; he specializes in nervous diseases. He has a big private hospital somewhere over in Jersey."

"And why not go to work for him?" Carol hadn't the slightest intention of doing anything like that but since the other girl had given her an opportunity to make inquiries without revealing anything, she would make use of it.

"Oh, I don't know except that . . . well, it's not wise to say what one thinks in this racket but I have a feeling from things I've heard that . . . well, you know a doctor who handles mental cases particularly has to be pretty careful that his reputation is above reproach and—don't dare quote me on this—Dr. Childers' reputation is quite positively NOT above the well-known reproach."

Carol was not surprised to hear that. Her intuitive sense had told her that Miss Miranda's presence was not wanted at tea to discuss diets.

She was nervous during the moving picture show and anxious to get back to Miranda. She felt that her reasonances would be called for.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Rarely has such a diversified and imposing array of stars from the radio, stage and screen been assembled in one picture as in Paramount's "The Big Broadcast of 1936," which comes tomorrow to the Cliftona Theatre, with Jack Oakie, Burns and Allen and Lyda Roberti in the leading roles.

In addition to the regular cast that appears in the fun-provoking comedy are famous personalities who contribute specialty numbers which form a background to the main theme. Bing Crosby, film and radio star, Amos 'n' Andy, world famous for their daily comic blackface sketch on the air waves, Ethel Merman, star of radio and musical comedy hits, Bill Robinson, internationally known negro tap dancer, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles, noted stage and screen comedians, the Nicholas Brothers, negro dancing youngsters, Willie, West and McGinty, and Ray Noble, renowned English band leader and song writer, with his orchestra, all have import roles in the picture.

AT THE CIRCLE

Trying to round up forty pure white horses from the well-stocked ranches around Hollywood required an equestrian Sherlock Holmes. Or so thought the cowboys who searched every nook and cranny seeking the white horses for John Wayne and his rip-roaring gang of forty Singing Riders, now appearing in "Westward Ho," the current attraction Sunday and Monday at the Circle theatre.

AT THE GRAND

James Cagney's is one Hollywood film colony marriage that has stuck through thick and thin.

Jimmy, who has the stellar role in the Warner Bros. production, "The Irish In Us," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Sunday, was married long before he had made a bit on the stage. He and his wife went through a long period of living through a long period in single rooms, cooking over the gas jets, dodging landlords and at times going hungry. Jimmy's spectacular success in pictures has not loosened the bonds made during such times.

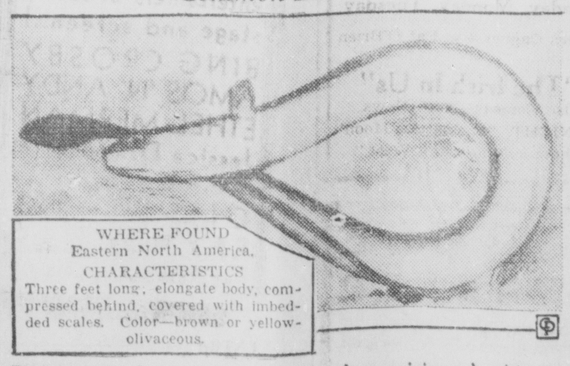
Common Eel



WHERE FOUND
Eastern North America.
CHARACTERISTICS
Three feet long; elongate body, compressed behind, covered with imbedded scales. Color—brown or yellow-olivaceous.

There is no other animal concerning whose origin and existence there is such a number of false beliefs as the common eel. He was a riddle to the ancient Greeks and even to Aristotle. The common eel is a fresh water fish who runs down to salt water only at spawning time. The female is remarkably prolific, one being known to produce 10,700,000 eggs! Caught in traps, eel-pots, seines and on setlines, the eel holds a high rank as an article of food.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Roosevelt Is Fairly Regular Correspondent With King George.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is a fairly regular correspondent with King George of England. The letter writing began after the President's mother was a guest of King George and Queen Mary, and Roosevelt wrote personally to thank them. Since then he has continued to pen in his own hand an occasional letter to the British monarch. . . . War and Navy Department chiefs are planning to take advantage of the war-threatening situation in Europe to launch preparedness drives at the coming session of Congress. Bills providing for an expanded army and navy are now being quietly whipped into shape . . . Florida's hard-working senior Senator Duncan U. Fletcher received the following letter from a worried constituent: "This is to let you know I am against the Townsend old-age pension scheme. I have too many other things to worry about without being compelled by the Government to spend $200 a month." . . . Any doubt as to whether Representative Fred M. Vinson would again sponsor the American Legion's bonus bill at the coming session was dispelled last Sunday. Led by National Commander Ray Murphy, a delegation of state and national veteran leaders journeyed to Ashland, Ky., to participate in a home-town rally staged for Vinson, at which he was acclaimed as the Legion's ball-carrier on the bonus . . . Thirty-one year old Blackwell Smith, retired NRA legal chief, has been succeeded by another youth. He is Burr Ansell, 29-year old Harvard law graduate who broke into the news last spring when he took a sock at the late Huey Long in a crowded Washington dining room. . . . Federal Trade Commission insiders predict that Colonel Charles H. Marsh will be the next chairman of the agency. Judge Ewin L. Davis, present chairman, will step down January 1, in accordance with FTC procedure of rotating the chairmanship.

Doctor Wallace

Two of the nine elaborate suites of offices in the new Supreme Court Building are vacant. Justices McReynolds and Brandeis prefer to do their work at home . . . It is a struggle for Henry Wallace to avoid the practice of medicine. Last Spring he sent to his Iowa friend, Congressman Fred Bierman, a bottle of allantoin as a possible cure for the foot ulcers that had kept Bierman on crutches. It acted like a miracle. Since then Wallace and his Department's Dr. William Robinson, have been flooded with requests for the medicine. (NOTE: Robinson discovered the healing effect of allantoin from experiments with maggots. Knowing that maggots are used by phsicians to heal wounds, he tried to find what gave them that power. It proved to be the substance allantoin, which maggots discharge as they work their way through a wound . . . Robert Fechner doesn't get excited when he hears that mutiny has broken out in one of his CCC camps, as it frequently does. "It must be the cook," he says, knowing that he is spending 50 cents a day on each member, as compared with 27 cents a day on transients in FERA camps . . . A good part of the 6600 pounds of soap powder bought each year for scouring the Capitol is being applied these days in a hign-powered housecleaning operation, to be completed before Congress convenes . . .

Minnesota's blind Senator Schall takes his exercise by riding horseback in a Washington suburb.

Radio Probe

The investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company by the Federal Communications Commission may be expanded at the coming session to include radio networks and independent stations. Several Senators, who put over the A. T. & T. probe, are much aroused over numerous complaints of discrimination and censorship by radio operators, and are talking of opening fire on them with a sweeping investigation. . . . In a telegram sent to a number of coal companies asking for urgently needed statistical information, the officially hard-up Bituminous Coal Commission concluded: "Please do not reply collect, as we have no funds to pay for your answer." . . . Bureau of Labor Statistics employment figures for September showed such a marked gain that Commissioner Isador Lubin would not believe them. He telegraphed for a re-check by the 135,000 manufacturers throughout the country who supply the data on which the monthly report is based. This delayed the statement several days, but Lubin refused to issue it until he had satisfied himself that the original booming figures were correct.

Poems That Live

EQUINOCTIAL

The sun of life has crossed the line;
The summer-shine of lengthened light
Faded and failed, till, where I stand,
'Tis equal day and equal night.

One after one, as dwindling hours,
Youth's glowing hopes have dropped away,
And soon may barely leave the gleam
That coldly scores a winter's day.

I am not young; I am not old;
The flush of morn, the sunset calm,
Paling and deepening, each to each,
Meet midway with a solemn charm.

One side I see the summer fields,
Not yet disrobed of all their green;
While westerly, along the hills,
Flame the first tints of frosty sheen.

Ah, middle-point, where cloud and storm
Make battle-ground of this my life!
Where, even-matched, the night and day
Wake round me their September strife!

I bow me to the threatening gale;
I know when that is overpast,
Among the peaceful harvest days,
An Indian summer comes at last!

Why Body Must Maintain Acid-Alkaline Balance

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PEOPLE TALK a great deal of being acid. And like to alkanize themselves to counteract this.

Whether there actually is much acidosis is open to question. Certainly every case of disturbance of the acid-alkaline balance of the body must be rapidly corrected or very serious consequences ensue.

Dr. Clendening

We have very delicate chemical methods of determining the exact reaction of the blood and tissues of the body. We can tell to a nicety whether they are even so slightly acid or not. Of course, acids are harmful, but so are their opposites—the chemical substances which react in an alkaline fashion. An extreme example is caustic soda which will destroy animal tissues. So what we want to strive for is neither acidity nor alkalinity, but a condition of neutrality.

And this is exactly what the body strives for desperately all its life—and manages to maintain to a nicety by a most ingenious set of chemical reactions, carried on by the buffer substances of the blood.

Example of Acidity

An example of acidity in the body frequently seen is the exhaustion that follows extreme muscular effort. We saw when we were examining the chemistry of muscular exercise a day or so ago, that one of the first chemicals to be formed in the body as a result of muscular contraction, is lactic acid. It is formed in considerable quantities, and unless plenty of oxygen gets to the muscles to correct it, it brings about cessation of contraction, and fatigue through its accumulation in the tissues. With our comparatively inadequate method of supplying oxygen to the muscles—as described in the article this week on muscle functioning—this condition comes to every man as a result of more or less violent exertion. When it does arrive, as in the case of the distance runner after a race, he is in a condition of acidosis, and as can be seen from his violent breathing, it is a quite uncomfortable state to be in. Unless enough oxygen is pumped to the muscles to reduce the lactic acid, indeed death will result.

In disease conditions, acidosis is frequently seen, but is usually so serious as to constitute an emergency. Thus, in diabetes, the patients may become sluggish and go into coma, unless they are getting enough insulin. This coma is the result of the accumulation of the ketone bodies which come from the fatty acids, incompletely reduced in the diabetic state.

Under most conditions, however, the body is fully able to compensate for any disturbance in its acid-base balance.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

G. M. W.: "I have heard that eating yeast will cause cancer. Is there any truth in this statement?"

Answer: We do not know the cause of cancer, but certainly yeast has never been considered to be a cause. Considering the amount of bread that is eaten, and also the amount of raw yeast, cancer would be practically universal if this were true.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Grange Meets

The 4-H club girls and boys under the leadership of Mrs. Merrill Bowman and Thomas Heffner presented the program at the meeting of Washington grange Friday evening in the school auditorium.

Fifty-five members enjoyed the entertainment preceded by a business session. Group singing by both clubs opened the program. Mary Beck gave the history of the girl's club and piano duets were played by Fern and Fairy Richards and Mary Katherine and Helen Bowman.

Recitations by Emogene Carr and Gale List and a talk on club work by F. K. Blair, county agent, were interesting. The program concluded with a drill by the girls, which included their national 4-H club song.

Refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ray Bowman.

At the grange meeting in two weeks officers will be elected.

Mrs. Groce Hostess

Mrs. Joseph Brown was a substituting guest when Mrs. Roy Groce entertained the members of her afternoon bridge club Friday at her home on E. Main-st.

Cards were in play at two tables and awards for high scores went to Mrs. Virgil Brown and Mrs. Rockford Brown. Lunch was served late in the afternoon.

Mrs. M. S. Rinehart, S. Scioto-st, will be hostess to the club in two weeks.

Mrs. Oliver W. Hosterman of Buffalo, N. Y. and Mrs. Donald Gosch of North Tonawanda, N. Y. arrived Friday evening to be guests for a few days of Mrs. Hosterman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles May, S. Court-st. They will return to New York Tuesday accompanied by Mrs. May, who will spend a week with her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. Hosterman.

Father Herman Reads Two Nuptial Services

Catherine Firsich and Mac M. Mader Are Wed

At a quiet but impressive ceremony Saturday morning in St. Joseph's Catholic parsonage, Miss Catherine Firsich became the bride of Mr. Mac M. Mader.

Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiated at the nuptials at 10:45 o'clock.

Miss Jane Mader, sister of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomas and Mr. Joseph Rooney were the attendants.

For her marriage the bride chose an attractive wine-colored wool suit with which she wore wine accessories and a shoulder corsage of white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Mader left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip through Virginia and West Virginia.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. Joseph J. Firsich of North Vernon, Ind., is an operator at the Mary Lee beauty shop.

Mr. Mader is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mader, E. Main-st, and is a salesman for the Fostoria Glass Co. of Moundsville, W. Va.

They will be at home to their many friends after Nov. 1 at 159½ E. Main-st.

O. E. S. Sewing Circle

Miss Eva Black and Mrs. Mary Spangler were hostesses to members of the Merri-makers sewing circle of the Eastern Star Friday afternoon at the former's home on S. Washington-st.

Twenty five members and two additional guests, Mrs. L. C. Sherburne and Mrs. E. S. Toeniskoetter enjoyed the hours spent in sewing and the refreshments served.

Mrs. Noah Spangler, W. High-st, invited the circle to meet at her home in two weeks.

Helen Hitler, Robert Smith Marry at 8:30 O'Clock

Members of the immediate families were present when Miss Helen Hitler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. L. Hitler, W. Mound-st, and Mr. Robert Smith, son of Mrs. E. E. Smith, S. Court-st, were married Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock. o'clock.

Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman read the service at the St. Joseph's Catholic parsonage.

Miss Marian Hitler attended her sister as maid of honor and Mr. Eugene Smith, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The bride was attractive in a beige wool suit with a raccoon color. She wore brown accessories and her shoulder corsage was of roses and white gardenias.

Her sister was attired in a brown alpaca dress with gold trimming with which she wore brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of roses.

Both Mrs. Hitler and Mrs. Smith had shoulder corsages of white gardenias.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast for the families was served at Dun Glen manor, Chillicothe, after which the couple left on a two weeks' motor trip south.

Upon return they will make their home at 135 E. High-st.

The bride attended Randolph-Macon School at Lynchburg, Va. for three years where she became affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She graduated from Ohio State university, Columbus, and for the past four years has been a teacher in the Pickaway-twp high school.

Mr. Smith attended Campion college at Prairie Du Chien, Wis. and graduated from St. Xavier college in Cincinnati. He is now associated with the Esmeralda Canning Co.

INDIANA HOPES TO UPSET OHIO IN TITLE RACE

McMillen Declares His Boys Out to Win, Not Keep Down Score.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 26 Coach Bo McMillen, who once led a little band of praying colonels from Centre college of Kentucky to Harvard stadium and greatly embarrassed the Harvards, ably sizes up the situation here today as he prepares to send his Indiana team against the scarlet scourge of Ohio State.

"In experience, manpower, and in replacements," he said, "Ohio State is superior to our team. But I never yet have sent a team into a game that I didn't think we could win.

"We're not out to keep down the score. We're out to win, to score a big football upset."

Always Underdog

Being the under-dog is no new experience to McMillin first at Centre as a player where he captained and quarterbacked the Praying Colonels to national recognition and admiration; as a coach at Centenary where he whipped an unknown team into a nationally ranking club; at Geneva and Kansas State.

He will get some aid today, however. It is homecoming, for one thing. For another there is the Hoosier tradition that Indiana always comes up with one great game a year. Last fall Indiana came up to the last game of the season against Purdue. Indiana hadn't won a conferedce game. Purdue was undefeated. Indiana won, 17 to 6.

If that tradition is fulfilled today, it will be a national upset. For the Buckeyes are primed to win the Big Ten championship and have an eye to national recognition: A 19 to 6 victory over Kentucky, 85 to 7 over Drake, 28 to 7 over Northwestern, testify to the power of Francis Schmidt's football machine.

Ohio Favored

Ohio State has passing, running and plunging power, an impregnable line and a host of reserves almost as strong as the first eleven.

Nowhere except on the Hoosier campus is anything but an overwhelming victory for the Buckeyes expected.

A crowd of 17,000 is expected to attend the game.

The probable lineups:

Ohio State	Pos.	Indiana
Wendt	L. E.	Cavacini
Harre	L. T.	Dalsasso
Maggied	L. G.	Miller
Jones	C.	Kelso
Smith	R. G.	Livingston
Roush	R. T.	Beasley
Rees	R. E.	Keck
Dye	Q. B.	Huffman
Heekin	L. H.	Walker
Boucher	R. H.	Eads
Antenucci	F. B.	Davis

The officials: Referee Dr. R. W. Huegel (Marquette); Umpire John Schommer (Chicago); Field Judge Ernie Vick (Michigan); Head Linesman E. C. Kreiger (Ohio U.)

FROM THE PRESS BOX

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor

If They Only Could Look Ahead!

A California newspaper the other day carried a story of the arrest of Dave Shade on a charge of begging on the streets. Not many years ago the fight world cheered this slashing battler. He was a fine middleweight, with color and courage. Dave Shade was what the fight managers call a "crowd pleaser" in their glowing literature. He fought hard.

Every city has its Dave Shades, men still young, who earned fortunes in the ring but who never learned that after the crowd leaves the arena, the lights are turned out and the show is over.

Mickey Walker made more than a million by fighting, and let it slip through his fingers. Another fight next week somewhere is the vague future upon which the Shades and Walkers depend.

Where the Way Lies

Finally come the weeks when there are no fights. Old men, men past 30 as fighting age is reckoned, are not wanted. They no longer are "crowd pleasers." Mickey Walker goes on, looking for fights, discovering he no longer can earn the kind of money that seemed so easy in the days of his youthful power.

So many young men accept the illusions, the glamor, the easy riches the ring offers, and so many come to the end with no more equipment for life's fight than Dave Shade! Every year hundreds of fresh boyish faces appear in the Golden Gloves and other amateur contests and it is hard to realize that on the outer fringe of the arena somewhere are lurking Dave Shades, battered and hopeless men to whom the ring once beckoned with promise of glory and wealth.

There are so many lives wrecked by the ring and its grisly associations that the victories of a few stand out in a brilliant light. One who was strikingly strong-er than the ring and its false cheers was James Joseph Tunney, and as the faces of the Shades flash and fade in a parade of failure, it is heartwarming to discover now and then a character like that of the Fighting Marine.

Looking Upward

He was an $8-a-week shipping clerk, and he looked beyond that. A buck private in the marines, he looked beyond that. A preliminary fighter, many times so badly beaten it seemed he must stop fighting, he looked beyond that, hitching his wagon to a high star, the hope of championship. Finally on a rainy night in Philadelphia, the champion!

And he looked beyond that. Unpopular with 99 out of 100 sports writers because he fussed and fumed at them when they criticized his manner as "high hat", he learned, after a few storms, to look beyond that. Much of the resentment directed against him arose from the fact that he beat Dempsey after nearly every expert in the country predicted Tunney's annihilation. Dempsey, who had been unpopular in the early days of his championship, suddenly became a brave knight outdone by a snobbish knave. That, in itself, should give the young man about to climb through the ropes for his first fight, a pretty good idea of the value of ringside roars.

When Tunney left the ring, and explained that he was quitting a sordid business because he had had enough of it, he was scorned at first. But soon the idea grew in volume that here was one of the most formidable fighters that ever lived. He has learned to look back and smile now because the cry of the wolves once nettled him. That was his greatest victory.

RACE "FIXING" BEING PROBED

Stewards Announce That Jockeys "Pulled" Horses; Owner Suspended.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 - A ring of jockeys conspiring to "fix" races has been uncovered at Sportsman's park race track here, officials of the track announced today.

Evidence has been unearthed, they said, that two or three jockeys have recently "pulled" their horses.

The announcement followed suppression of an alleged attempt to "fix" the fifth race yesterday. John Patton, secretary-treasurer of the track, said he had been informed by a jockey that he had been approached by "touts" and "instructed" to run his mount out of the money.

Track officials refused to reveal details of the conspiracy ring, saying their evidence would be placed in the hands of the state racing commission sometime today.

Meanwhile, the Illinois commission faced the defense of a $100,000 damage suit. Jay D. Mikel, horse owner, announced today he would file suit following the ruling of the commission last night banning him from the turf for life on charges that he ran the gelded My Bane as a 2-year-old in a race at Lincoln fields early in August when in reality, according to the commission, the horse was a 3-year-old.

PROSPECTIVE HOME OR INVESTMENT BUYERS

Many of you have experienced the drudgery and toil of the poorly equipped farms, and have deprived yourself and your families of the luxuries and comforts of life, in order to create a savings, whereby someday you might have an opportunity to live on such a farm with a modern home, that offers the comforts and conveniences of the most luxurious city apartment.

What a feeling of satisfaction and pride that must be, yours when you have reached the point where this can be accomplished. But remember, even though your highest ambitions in life have been realized, you will still be living in the same old rut if you do not act at once, and make this investment before land prices have advanced beyond your purchasing power.

I am offering to you this week, the farm of your dreams, a perfect little palace, and should you choose to invest your savings in these premises you will be the holder of one of the choicest securities the world has to offer.

I submit for your consideration, This beautiful farm home located on federal route, on lands that are good to look upon, in the very heart of the corn belt almost within stone's throw of church, schools, live stock and grain markets with extra good fences, thoroughly tiled, barns, garage outbuildings of all sorts, that are in keeping with premises of this kind.

The residence - a new modern and unusually attractive warm cent brick, six room bungalow, possessing every feature that adds to the comforts of a home, including electrical equipment of all kind, very best hot air furnace that money can buy, pressure tanks forcing both kinds of water into kitchen and bath room, elaborately built-in cupboards in kitchen, large modern sink and drain boards, electric refrigerator, electric range, a built-in china closet in dining room that is within itself a work of art, open fire place in large living room, open stairway leading to den on second floor, and hardwood floors throughout of the very best quality. A splendid modern bath room with fixtures of very latest design.

What a farm. What a home, what a location and the price, neither high nor low, just a fair market price considering what I have to offer, no repairs, no improvements to be made. Move in and start taking in the money.

Terms Cash or will make you a loan for any reasonable amount providing security is satisfactory. Possession in thirty days if desired. No of acres — 125 — .

INDIANA HOPES TO UPSET OHIO IN TITLE RACE

McMillen Declares His Boys Out to Win, Not Keep Down Score.

ELOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 26—Coach Bo McMillen, who once led a little band of praying colonels from Centre college of Kentucky to Harvard stadium and greatly embarrassed the Harvards, ably sizes up the situation here today as he prepares to send his Indiana team against the scarlet scourge of Ohio State.

"In experience, manpower, and in replacements," he said, "Ohio State is superior to our team. But I never yet have sent a team into a game that I didn't think we could win.

"We're not out to keep down the score. We're out to win, to score a big football upset."

Always Underdog

Being the under-dog is no new experience to McMillin—first at Centre as a player where he captained and quarterbacked the Praying Colonels to national recognition and admiration; as a coach at Centenary where he whipped an unknown team into a nationally ranking club; at Geneva and Kansas State.

He will get some aid today, however. It is homecoming, for one thing. For another there is the Hoosier tradition that Indiana always comes up with one great game a year. Last fall Indiana came up to the last game of the season against Purdue. Indiana hadn't won a conferedce game. Purdue was undefeated. Indiana won 17 to 6.

If that tradition is fulfilled today, it will be a national upset. For the Buckeyes are primed to win the Big Ten championship and have an eye to national recognition. A 19 to 6 victory over Kentucky, 85 to 7 over Drake, 28 to 7 over Northwestern, testify to the power of Francis Schmidt's football machine.

Ohio Favored

Ohio State has passing, running and plunging power, an impregnable line and a host of reserves almost as strong as the first eleven.

Nowhere except on the Hoosier campus is anything but an overwhelming victory for the Buckeyes expected.

A crowd of 17,000 is expected to attend the game.

The probable lineups:

Ohio State	Pos.	Indiana
Wendt	L. E.	Cavacini
Harre	L. T.	Dalsasso
Maggied	L. G.	Miller
Jones	C	Kelso
Smith	R. G.	Livingston
Roush	R. T.	Beasley
Rees	R. E.	Keck
Dye	Q. B.	Huffman
Heekin	L. H.	Walker
Boucher	R. H.	Eads
Antenucci	F. B.	Davis

The officials: Referee—Dr. R. W. Huegel (Marquette); Umpire—John Schommer (Chicago); Field Judge—Ernie Vick (Michigan); Head Linesman—E. C. Kreiger (Ohio U.)

FROM THE PRESS BOX

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor

If They Only Could Look Ahead!

A California newspaper the other day carried a story of the arrest of Dave Shade on a charge of begging on the streets. Not many years ago the fight world cheered this slashing battler. He was a fine middleweight, with color and courage. Dave Shade was what the fight managers call a "crowd pleaser" in their glowing literature. He fought hard.

Every city has its Dave Shades, men still young, who earned fortunes in the ring but who never learned that after the crowd leaves the arena, the lights are turned out and the show is over.

Mickey Walker made more than a million by fighting, and let it slip through his fingers. Another fight next week somewhere is the vague future upon which the Shades and Walkers depend.

Where the Way Lies

Finally come the weeks when there are no fights. Old men, men past 30 as fighting age is reckoned, are not wanted. They no longer are "crowd pleasers." Mickey Walker goes on, looking for fights, discovering he no longer can earn the kind of money that seemed so easy in the days of his youthful power.

So many young men accept the illusions, the glamor, the easy riches the ring offers, and so many come to the end with no more equipment for life's fight than Dave Shade! Every year hundreds of fresh boyish faces appear in the Golden Gloves and other amateur contests and it is hard to realize that on the outer fringe of the arena somewhere are lurking Dave Shades, battered and hopeless men to whom the ring once beckoned with promise of glory and wealth.

There are so many lives wrecked by the ring and its grisly associations that the victories of a few stand out in a brilliant light. One who was strikingly stronger than the ring and its false cheers was James Joseph Tunney, and as the faces of the Shades flash and fade in a parade of failure, it is heartwarming to discover now and then a character like that of the Fighting Marine.

Looking Upward

He was an 88-a-week shipping clerk, and he looked beyond that. A buck private in the marines, he looked beyond that. A preliminary fighter, many times so badly beaten it seemed he must stop fighting, he looked beyond that, hitching his wagon to a high star, the hope of championship. Finally on a rainy night in Philadelphia, the champion!

And he looked beyond that. Unpopular with 99 out of 100 sports writers because he fussed and fumed at them when they criticized his manner as "high hat", he learned, after a few storms, to look beyond that. Much of the resentment directed against him arose from the fact that he beat Dempsey after nearly every expert in the country predicted Tunney's annihilation. Dempsey, who had been unpopular in the early days of his championship, suddenly became a brave knight outdone by a snobbish knave. That, in itself, should give the young man about to climb through the ropes for his first fight, a pretty good idea of the value of ringside roars.

When Tunney left the ring, and explained that he was quitting a sordid business because he had had enough of it, he was scorned at first. But soon the idea grew in volume that here was one of the most formidable fighters that ever lived. He has learned to look back and smile now because the cry of the wolves once nettled him. That was his greatest victory.

PROSPECTIVE HOME OR INVESTMENT BUYERS

Many of you have experienced the drudgery and toil of the poorly equipped farms, and have deprived yourself and your families of the luxuries and comforts of life, in order to create a savings, whereby someday you might have an opportunity to buy or farm with a modern home, that offers all the comforts and conveniences of the most luxurious city apartment.

What a feeling of satisfaction and pride that must be yours when you have reached the point where this can be accomplished. But remember, even though your highest ambitions in life have been realized, you will still be living in the same old rut if you do not act at once, and make this investment before land prices have advanced beyond your purchasing power.

I am offering to you this week, the farm of your dreams, a perfect little palace, and should you choose to invest your savings in these premises you will be the holder of one of the choicest securities the world has to offer.

I submit for your consideration. This beautiful farm home located on federal route, on lands that are second to none in value, in the very heart of the corn belt almost within stones throw of church, schools, live stock and grain markets with extra good fences, thoroughly tiled, barns, garage outbuildings of all sorts, that are in keeping with premises of this kind.

The residence—a new modern and unusually attractive wire cut brick, six room bungalow, possessing every feature that adds to the comforts of a home, including electrical equipment of all kind, very best hot air furance that money can buy, pressure tanks forcing both kinds of water into kitchen and bath room, elaborately built-in cupboards in kitchen, large modern sink and drain boards, electric refrigerator, electric range, a built-in china closet in dining room that is within itself a work of art, open fire place in large living room, open stairway leading to den on second floor, and hardwood floors throughout of the very best quality. A strictly modern bath room with fixtures of very latest design.

What a farm. What a home, what a location and the price, neither high nor low, just a fair market price considering what I have to offer, no repairs, no improvements to be made. Move in and start taking in the money.

Terms Cash or will make you a loan for any reasonable amount providing security is satisfactory. Possession in thirty days if desired. No of acres — 125 —

LEWIS ORGANIZES SCIOTO FARM MANAGEMENT SERVICE

FORMER AGENT PLANS OFFICES ON N. COURT-ST

To Take Over Active Operation of Farms, Obtain Tenants, etc.

H. Stanley Lewis, former Pickaway-co extension agent, announced today that he has organized the Scioto Farm Management service with offices to be located at 121½ N. Court-st, over the Cussins & Fearn store.

Mr. Lewis announces the purpose of his organization is to take over a farm management contract to supervise lands owned by absentee landlords or landlords engaged in other businesses.

The service will consist of obtaining efficient tenants, preparing leases of operation, planning cropping and livestock programs, maintaining an inventory of livestock, equipment and crop yields and representing the landlords in public hearings such as ditch and road assessment cases.

Mr. Lewis is well-qualified through his wide experience to prove of valuable service. He served as agent for Wood-co at Bowling Green from 1919 until 1925, was field secretary for the Ohio Farm bureau from 1925 to 1926 when he came to Pickaway-co as farm agent, remaining here until Oct. 15, 1932. He has since represented the National Order Buying Co. and Columbus Producers as a field representative and cattle buyer.

IMPORTANT CITY VOTING IS ONLY TEN DAYS AWAY

Three Issues Stand Out; Mayor, School Board, and Bond Issue.

Baker, Ben Gordon, Frank A. Marion, Democrats, and Leslie D. May, Republican.

John C. Gaeller is unopposed for president of council and Carl C. Leist has no opposition for solicitor. Both are Democrats.

Eight Seek Three Jobs

The board of education finds a number of well-qualified citizens seeking office three positions. Charles H. May and C. R. Barnhart, incumbents, are again in the race, while Robert C. Colville, now county treasurer, is not. Others seeking the board posts are Edward Helwagen, Karl J. Herrmann, John M. Kirwin, Rev. L. C. Sherburne, Dr. G. D. Phillips, and W. M. Reid.

The bond issue, which will be submitted to voters, would provide the city's share of $82,000 needed to construct the addition to the school. The need for an addition has been shown many times and school officials are confident the city's voters will approve the issue. The government, it is understood, is willing to approve the project as a Public Works function as soon as the city votes its share. A 13-room addition is planned.

The present building was constructed 20 years ago and during these years the enrollment has doubled.

made. The bushel average is obtained by dividing the total poundage by 70.

The Pickaway and Ross-co winners journey to Paulding, Friday, Nov. 1, to take part in the state contest.

500 Watch Contest

A crowd estimated at 500 persons watched the local contests on the Fullerton farm south of Circleville on the Kingston pike. During the noon hour Guy Dowdy, former Pickaway countian, now assistant AAA administrator in the state, gave a brief address on the corn and hog program.

The Logan Elm grange and Vocational Agriculture department of Pickaway-twp school sponsored the contests.

SOLONS CALLED TO DECIDE UPON BUDGET ISSUES

Bittinger Orders Session for Next Wednesday; May Become Hectic.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26 — J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives today sent out a call for members of the House to return Wednesday for what promises to be one of the most discordant sessions of the battle-scarred Davey administration.

Bittinger kept his promise to Ohio's solons by refusing to call them back from recess until the House finance committee reached agreement on a solution of the state's budget evils, largely caused by Governor Davey's veto of $8,800,000 from the biennial appropriations.

Voted Budget Bill

The call was not issued until the finance group despaired of compromising on a budget bill and as a last resort voted out of committee a highly controversial budget bill restoring nearly $1,290,000 of the Davey vetoes.

Fifteen of the 23 members of the finance committee joined to push the measure out on the House floor, but nearly every one of them qualified his vote with a warning of amendments that are to come when the bill reaches the floor for debate.

The increases tacked to the measure by the committee may be doubled or trebled by amendments in the House. Leaders in the lower branch of the assembly feel they may as well let down the bars for increases, since a majority of senate members have declared in certain terms they will boost the totals far beyond the Davey-veto total when it comes to the upper branch.

Davey's own budget transfer bill, which sought to take from salary items enough money to restore the essential items he cut completely from the budget bill, is still before the House. It must be reconsidered and sent back to the finance committee before the amended measure, turned out by the finance committee yesterday, can come to a vote.

May Be Tied Up

The wrangle over the budget measure may keep the House tied up until Saturday, but Bittinger has warned that he will seek to end the long-drawn recess rapidly.

First and Second Grades

The first grade began reading in their Primers. They like the stories and the characters very much.

The numbers in the first grade are progressing very rapidly. The children can count by their 1's, 5's, and 10's. They are now working on easy number stories.

The second grade students are learning to weave. They made woven paper rugs in art last week.

We were glad to have Miss Doris Hott observe in our room last week.

High School

On the evening of Thursday, Oct. 31 the school will hold its annual carnival in the auditorium. Muhlenberg carnivals in the past have been The Affairs of the year. Now, with plenty of new concessions to induce new crowds. The affair promises to be bigger and better than ever.

The whole school has been busy this week congratulating Frank Johnston, our principal. The reason is that last Friday evening he became the proud father of an eight pound son. Every one doing nicely.

Our school exhibit placed fifth in the Junior Fair at Circleville. This is the first time that we have ever received a ribbon in that exhibit.

Two costly casualties may mar the orange and black's chances this coming basketball season. Marion Collins suffered a bad metatarsal dislocation which will keep him on crutches for quite a while. It is problematical if he can play at all. The other injury is a bad ankle that Kenneth Dean keeps spraining about as soon as it has healed. With these two veterans on crutches Mr. Fullen, the new athletic director, has sprouted a whole crop of gray hairs.

The letter girls returning on the team for the coming year are: Medrith Brigner, Evelyn Hill, Glendal Dick, Louise Neff, Evelyn Clifton, Irene Kinser, Mary Jane Smith, Margaret Brigner. The lettermen are Kenneth Dean, Marion Collins, Edward Kennedy and Myrl Collins.

The P. T. A. has decided to buy a new kerosene range for the Home Economics department.

All prizes for the big Fall festival to be given on Hallowe'en night have been purchased from the Continental Premium Mart in Chicago. There will be over one hundred and fifty different prizes given to various participants.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The sixth grade is working on booklets of South America. Each one is making a booklet for himself or herself, but all are working together. Reports are made from encyclopedias and other geography books. From the reports much information is added to what is in our text books.

The fifth grade class in arithmatic has been spending much time in improving their skill in working long division. In recent drills much progress has been noted.

Everyone was present Monday to start the new week off right, after many were absent the past two weeks due to seeding time and the Pumpkin Show.

Thursday evening, Nov. 7, is the next Parent-Teachers meeting. The fifth and sixth grades are giving the program. We hope many parents and people of the community will be present for the meeting and to enjoy the program.

We are very happy to have Delores Huffer back in school with us. She was greatly missed in school when the chicken pox decided to give her a vacation at home for a week.

Since a new lathe has been added to the manual training department of the class of fourteen members, many of whom are advanced in this field, will be able to make larger and more practical projects. Several projects being completed now are table lamps, and tables, book racks, bracket shelves, hall tree, three double easels for the primary grades, ball bats, magazine racks, candle stick holders, and wall shelves.

P. T. A.

Rev. R. H. Morris was greatly enjoyed by those attending the October meeting of the Parent Teachers Association held in the school auditorium on last Tuesday evening. A short business session was conducted by the president, Scott Morgan. The program was in charge of three high school students, Dudley Steele, acting as chairman of the committee. October being the birthday of James Whitcomb Riley, a paper on his life was read by Martha Donohoe and two of his poems were given by Addie Ruth Skinner and Martha Wright. Janet Kirk gave a vocal solo and Willis Taylor of Clarksburg presented a trombone solo. It was decided to have the Hallowe'en festival again this year similar to the one given by the organization during the past two years. It will be held on Wednesday evening, October 30, in the school auditorium.

Music

Mr. Stoneman, a senior at Ohio State University has been employed by the local board of education to teach instrumental music in the school. He has classes of approximately twenty violins, eight trumpets, four saxophones, three trombones, eight clarinets and two drums. These classes meet each Tuesday and Thursday morning. Mr. Stoneman is the manager of the Ohio State University bands and orchestras. He is also a member of the Football and Concert bands and the University Symphony orchestra.

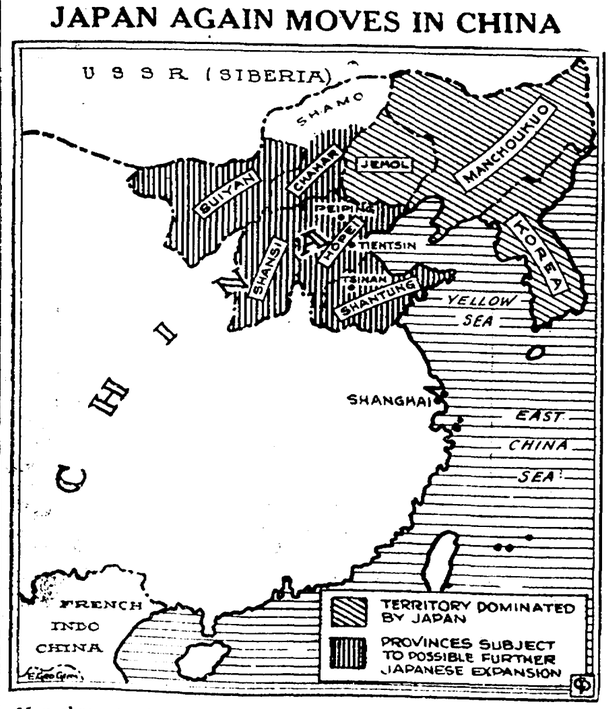
JAPAN AGAIN MOVES IN CHINA



Map shows territory Japan already has sliced away from China and territory which is the subject of new demands

While European nations are involved over the African squabble Japan is making new moves in China. A Japanese spokesman said Japan "may find it necessary" to separate five provinces of North China from administration by the central Chinese government. Such action, the spokesman explained, "would be necessary" unless Nanking voluntarily co-operates with Tokio in "promoting the natural economic affinity between North China and Manchukuo and in combatting Communistic influence working through Outer Mongolia." The provinces mentioned by the spokesman are Hopei, Shantung, Suiyuan, Chahar and Shansi, shown on the above explanatory map. The Chinese fear Japan may adopt a high-handed policy in North China.

DARBY SCHOOL NEWS

Darby Township School is sponsoring a Hallowe'en Carnival for your enjoyment on Friday evening, November 1. The evening's fun begins at 7:30 with a masked parade in which two prizes will be awarded for the best and the funniest costumes. Side-shows, fortune-telling, and spooky Chamber of Horrors are a few of the attractions. The highlight of the evening is a minstrel show, free. Ice cream, sandwiches, pumpkin pie, home-made candies, cider and doughnuts will be served throughout the evening in the dining room. So come and join the fun at 7:30 November 1, at Darby School. Admission at the door is 10 cents for adults and 5 cents for children.

An item omitted in last week's news was one concerning the last assembly program. Rev. W. N. Mantle of Mt. Sterling gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Words." The student body enjoyed this talk very much, as it always does Rev. Mantle's talks. Several other numbers on the program were given by students. The next assembly program will be October 24 and will be in charge of Miss Jones and a committee of pupils, of which Ruth Skinner is chairman.

All the teachers are planning to attend the meetings of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association at Dayton on Friday and Saturday of this week. Many meetings of an inspirational and instructive nature have been planned by the committees in charge. There will be no school on Friday of this week.

Darby made a very creditable showing in the School Exhibit at the Pumpkin Show last week. The committee of teachers consisting of Miss Hill, Miss Minshall and Miss Skinner deserve commendation for their work in arranging and putting up the display, and it was due to the splendid cooperation of all the teachers and a number of pupils that a display was made possible.

The first call for basketball practice resulted in a large turnout of both boys and girls. Mr. Hill, the new boys' coach, had a group of almost twenty-five boys at the first practice session and Miss De Muth nearly as many girls. They are starting with more interest and enthusiasm than usual.

The Board of Education is having a pamphlet prepared for the purpose of giving the voters of the Township all the facts concerning the bond issue that is to be voted on at the coming election. The purpose of this bond issue is to provide an addition to the present building to be used by the high school.

The honor roll for the first six weeks period is given below. In order to be on this roll a pupil must have an average of G. or above, in everything including conduct and application. The first list is as follows: High School: Eva Mae Mouser, Ruth Skinner, Gladys Vance, Joanne Hill, Janet Tracy, Bertha Jane Gantz, Irene Karn, Hildreth Eades, Jane Eakin, Alice Greene, Jane Anne Higgins, Jeanette Musselman, Helen Poulson, Annabelle Stump; Room Four:—Betty Anne Creamer, Betty Jane Wilkey, Esther Gantz, Billy Cox, Lelan Poulson, Betty Huffer, Jay Creamer, Helen Conley; Room Three:—Alice Erb, Miriam Greassle, Thelma Creamer, Faye Karn, Corliss Greassle, Ivan Eakin, Virginia Kautz, Naomi Walker; Room Two:—Helen Downs, Geraldine Huffer; Room One:—Alonia Greassle, Betty Jean Riddle, Alice Huffer, Marshall Downs, Kathleen Connell, Monalu Gantz; Era, Room One: — Eugene Dountz, Clarence Liff, Betty Lou Liff.

Hallowe'en Carnival

Where: Darby School Building.
When: Friday evening, Nov. 1, 1935, 7:30.

Come, my friends, and you shall spy
The Hallowe'en Carnival of Darby High
On the first of November of '35;
Hardly a man is there alive
Who would wish to miss this treat of treats.
Lots of fun and good things to eat.
With a minstrel show free to all
And a masked parade in the hall;
Side-shows, freaks, and games of chance,
Now I ask how you can let this pass.
So come, one and all, you might win the prize,
For the best costume or the worst on 'youse guys."
Eat ice cream, candies, and pumpkin pies
And we'll guarantee that you won't die.
With having fun and "getting the works"
At Darby School on November the first.

LEWIS ORGANIZES SCIOTO FARM MANAGEMENT SERVICE

FORMER AGENT PLANS OFFICES ON N. COURT-ST

To Take Over Active Operation of Farms, Obtain Tenants, etc.

H. Stanley Lewis, former Pickaway-co extension agent, announced today that he has organized the Scioto Farm Management service with offices to be located at 121½ N. Court-st, over the Cussins & Fearn store.

Mr. Lewis announces the purpose of his organization is to take over a farm management contract to supervise lands owned by absentee landlords or landlords engaged in other businesses.

The service will consist of obtaining efficient tenants, preparing leases of operation, planning cropping and livestock programs, maintaining an inventory of livestock, equipment and crop yields and representing the landlords in public hearings such as ditch and road assessment cases.

Mr. Lewis is well-qualified through his wide experience to prove of valuable service. He served as agent for Wood-co at Bowling Green from 1919 until 1925, was field secretary for the Ohio Farm bureau from 1925 to 1926 when he came to Pickaway-co as farm agent, remaining here until Oct. 15, 1932. He has since represented the National Order Buying Co. and Columbus Producers as a field representative and cattle buyer.

IMPORTANT CITY VOTING IS ONLY TEN DAYS AWAY

Three Issues Stand Out; Mayor, School Board, and Bond Issue.

Baker, Ben Gordon, Frank A. Marion, Democrats, and Leslie D. May, Republican.

John C. Goeller is unopposed for president of council and Carl C. Leist has no opposition for solicitor. Both are Democrats.

Eight Seek Three Jobs

The board of education finds a number of well-qualified citizens seeking office three positions. Charles H. May and C. R. Barnhart, incumbents, are again in the race, while Robert G. Colville, now county treasurer, is not. Others seeking the board posts are Edward Helwagen, Karl J. Herrmann, John M. Kirwin, Rev. L. C. Sherburne, Dr. G. D. Phillips, and W. M. Reid.

The bond issue, which will be submitted to voters, would provide the city's share of $82,000 needed to construct the addition to the school. The need for an addition has been shown many times and school officials are confident the city's voters will approve the issue. The government, it is understood, is willing to approve the project as a Public Works function as soon as the city votes its share. A 13-room addition is planned.

The present building was constructed 20 years ago and during those years the enrollment has doubled.

SOLONS CALLED TO DECIDE UPON BUDGET ISSUES

Bittinger Orders Session for Next Wednesday; May Become Hectic.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26— J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives today sent out a call for members of the House to return Wednesday for what promises to be one of the most discordant sessions of the battle-scarred Davey administration.

Bittinger kept his promise to Ohio's solons by refusing to call them back from recess until the House finance committee reached agreement on a solution of the state's budget evils, largely caused by Governor Davey's veto of $8,800,000 from the biennial appropriations.

Voted Budget Bill

The call was not issued until the finance group despaired of compromising on a budget bill and as a last resort voted out of committee a highly controversial budget bill restoring nearly $1,290,000 of the Davey vetoes.

Fifteen of the 23 members of the finance committee joined to push the measure out on the House floor, but nearly every one of them qualified his vote with a warning of amendments that are to come when the bill reaches the floor for debate.

Admission at the door is 10 cents for adults and 5 cents for children.

An item omitted in last week's news was one concerning the last assembly program. Rev. W. N. Mantle of Mt. Sterling gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Words." The student body enjoyed this talk very much, as it always does Rev. Mantle's talks. Several other numbers on the program were given by students. The next assembly program will be October 24 and will be in charge of Miss Jones and a committee of pupils, of which Ruth Skinner is chairman.

All the teachers are planning to attend the meetings of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association at Dayton on Friday and Saturday of this week. Many meetings of an inspirational and instructive nature have been planned by the committees in charge. There will be no school on Friday of this week.

Darby made a very creditable showing in the School Exhibit at the Pumpkin Show last week. The committee of teachers consisting of Miss Hill, Miss Minshall and Miss Skinner deserve commendation for their work in arranging and putting up the display, and it was due to the splendid cooperation of all the teachers and a number of pupils that a display was made possible.

The first call for basketball practice resulted in a large turnout of both boys and girls. Mr. Hill, the new boys' coach, had a group of almost twenty-five boys at the first practice session and Miss De Muth nearly as many girls. They are starting with more interest and enthusiasm than usual.

The Board of Education is having a pamphlet prepared for the purpose of giving the voters of the Township all the facts concerning the bond issue that is to be voted on at the coming election. The purpose of this bond issue is to provide an addition to the present building to be used by the high school.

The honor roll for the first six weeks period is given below. In order to be on this roll a pupil must have an average of G. or above, in everything including conduct and application. The first list is as follows: High School: Eva Mae Mouser, Ruth Skinner, Gladys Vance, Joanne Hill, Janet Tracy, Bertha Jane Gantz, Irene Karn, Hildreth Eades, Jane Eakin, Alice Greene, Jane Anne Higgins, Jeanette Musselman, Helen Poulson, Annabelle Stump; Room Four:—Betty Anne Creamer, Betty Jane Wilkey, Esther Gantz, Billy Cox, Lelan Poulson, Betty Huffer, Jay Creamer, Helen Conley; Room Three:—Alice Erb, Miriam Greassle, Thelma Creamer, Faye Karn, Corliss Greassle, Ivan Eakin, Virginia Kautz, Naomi Walker; Room Two:—Helen Downs, Geraldine Huffer; Room One:—Aloma Greassle, Betty Jean Riddle, Alice Huffer, Marshall Downs, Kathleen Connell, Monalu Gantz; Era, Room One:—Eugene Dountz, Clarence Liff, Betty Lou Liff.

Hallowe'en Carnival

Where: Darby School Building.
When: Friday evening, Nov. 1, 1935, 7:30.

Come, my friends, and you shall spy
The Hallowe'en Carnival of Darby High
On the first of November of '35;
Hardly a man is there alive
Who would wish to miss this treat of treats.
Lots of fun and good things to eat.
With a minstrel show free to all
And a masked parade in the hall;
Side-shows, freaks, and games of chance,
Now I ask how you can let this pass.
So come, one and all, you might win the prize,
For the best costume or the worst on 'youse guys."
Eat ice cream, candies, and pumpkin pies
And we'll guarantee that you won't die.
With having fun and "getting the works"
At Darby School on November the first.
